

Hoping For Good Luck

If you think walking under a ladder or seeing a black cat cross your path is a sign of bad luck on Friday the 13th, you must lead a pretty sheltered life. There are others who do more daring things on an everyday basis. Here, Dave Johnson, Salem, precariously tries to direct the course of a heavy concrete cement bucket being lowered by a crane at construction site of the new junior high school at 19th and Lafayette. Behind Johnson is a drop of approximately 30 feet.

Jobless Payments Increase

Unemployment insurance payments for July made through the Sedalia office of the Division of Employment Security for Pettis, Johnson and Morgan counties rose to $85,160, an increase of $17,433 compared to payments in June, according to a news release from the office.

Last month's payments were also $12,165 more than payments made in July, 1970.

A total of 942 initial claims were filed last month, compared to 820 during June and 758 in July, 1970. Continued claims totaled 2,707 last month compared to 2,579 in June and 2,375 in July, 1970.

The above statistics were compiled by Russell Carr, director of the area office of Employment Security.

Carr explained that the increase in initial and continued claims was mainly due to area manufacturing industries laying off employees. He pointed out that nine plants in the three county area were shut down, some of them for two weeks.

However, job openings and replacements showed an upturn in July compared to June. This is due to the fact that area industries hired replacements and one plant increased its staff due to additional work load after resuming operations following the layoff period.

Pettis County's unemployment rate was 5.1 per cent in June, and 4.9 per cent in June, 1970.

Johnson county's unemployment rate was 3.3 per cent in June compared to 3.1 per cent in June, 1970; that of Morgan County 3.3 per cent in June and 3.7 per cent in June, 1970.

Wallace Gives Challenge To Federal Busing Word

TROY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace, challenging President Nixon and the federal courts, today ordered the reopening under a freedom-of-choice plan of a black school closed two weeks ago by a federal court to speed integration.

Wallace issued an executive order directing the Limestone County school board to open the New Hope Junior High School and allow residents of the predominantly Negro community to choose the county school their children will attend this fall.

The New Hope School, established in the early 1920s, had only black pupils for many years. At the end of the 1970-71 school year, there were 184 Negro and 5 white children in the student body.

Wallace ordered the school board to reinstitute the attendance zone plan in effect last school year which permitted pupils in the New Hope community to attend that school or any other of their choice in the county. He directed the board to provide transportation for those who elect to attend other schools.

Acknowledging that his action will create an "economic burden" for the board, the governor said the state will contribute $30,000 "to help in renovating the New Hope School to provide adequate classrooms for all students in the New Hope community who desire to attend New Hope School."

Wallace said that under a federal court order handed down July 30, New Hope pupils were assigned to Tanner and East Limestone schools 20 to 22 miles away. Bus transportation to Tanner and East Limestone is dangerous, he said, because the route is heavily traveled, "bumper to bumper" at times.

New Hope is one of more than 140 Negro schools in Alabama closed by a three-judge federal court as part of a stepped-up integration formula. Their pupils were reassigned to predominantly white schools.

Wallace said one of the reasons he singled out the Limestone County school in northwest Alabama as the first to reopen is that more than 100 black parents petitioned him to intervene.

The governor had said earlier he would order the reopening of an undisclosed number of the schools under the freedom of choice plan which has been rejected by the federal courts. Until today, he had not identified any of them.

He made the announcement at Troy State University while here to receive an honorary doctor of laws degree and to deliver the commencement address closing the summer term.

Wallace on Thursday ordered a white pupil transferred from a predominantly black school to which she was assigned by a federal court desegregation plan.

He called on the Nixon administration to join him in fighting the federal court desegregation plan and told newsmen he was trying to assist the President in his announced opposition to massive busing to obtain school integration.

"You might say Gov. Wallace is working closely with the President to help carry out his desire not to have massive busing," the Alabama chief executive said.

"If President Nixon is against massive busing, I would expect his attorney general and the secretary of health, education and welfare to join with me."

Asked for the President's reaction to Wallace's statement, Ziegler replied: "What he said was: 'Let's look into the matter.'"

School Board, Citizens

Communication Is Topic

A cross section of interested Sedalians met at State Fair Community College Thursday evening to form a committee to establish better communications between the board of education and the community.

Sedalia Pettis County League of Women Voters members Mrs. Richard C. Middleton and Mrs. John B. Ellison, Jr., presided.

Explaining the reason for the meeting, Mrs. Middleton told the predominantly female audience of about 30 that a school board member, with the concurrence of the board, asked the League of Women Voters to arrange public meetings between the board and concerned citizens. "We were delighted and flattered to be asked," Mrs. Middleton said, but felt "other civic organizations should be included."

"It is evident to us that many people do a great deal of talking about the school board, yet we see so few people in attendance at regular meetings," Mrs. Middleton said. She explained that enthusiasm for the proposed community sessions with the school board stems from the "excellent response" to the league's "candidate's night" gatherings during the last school board election. Mrs. Ellison explained that prime emphasis would be placed on encouraging dialogue between board members and Sedalians.

Both Mrs. Ellison and Mrs. Middleton stressed interest in understanding and seeking solutions to the "overwhelming" problems of public school administration. "We feel the purpose of this organization should not be merely to criticize," Mrs. Middleton said.

Explaining the necessity of such a committee, Mrs. Ellison said it would allow board members more freedom of expression.

Mrs. Ellison emphasized the importance of the local news media to the success of the discussion sessions with the board. "We feel publicity is the vital factor," she said. "And don't underestimate civic organizations," she added later, "they can provide an extra push."

After Mrs. Ellison and Mrs. Middleton completed their opening remarks and suggestions, the meeting was opened for discussion from the floor. One participant asked if a problem was always necessary before a community meeting could be

Review Applications For Housing Project

The Sedalia Housing Authority Thursday night reviewed applications for occupancy of public housing units nearing completion at 24th and Engineer. Twenty-one applications were approved, bringing the total to 42, for the 50-unit facility.

The nine buildings at the Engineer site, consisting of 40 one-bedroom and 10 two-bedroom units, are designed for occupancy by the low-income elderly.

Clyde H. Robinson, presiding in the absence of Housing Authority chairman E. Glenn Lewis, said all persons whose applications have been approved will be notified so that details of apartment assignment can be worked out as soon as possible.

Housing Authority secretary, the Rev. Marvin Albright, announced that a representative of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) would be in Sedalia Friday to inspect the interior of the units. He will be accompanied on the inspection by representatives of AMCON International, Memphis, Tenn., the builder, and by members of the Housing Authority.

Final approval cannot be given, however, until additional exterior work has been completed, it was reported.

Underground drain tiles, required following the last HUD inspection to prevent water seeping under the slab floors, have now been installed and the only major work remaining is repaving parking lots and driveways and installing curbs and guttering.

Although a definite date could not be set, Housing Authority officials seemed confident the units would be ready for occupancy in the near future.

Remap Could Damage Some Senate Seats

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's new senatorial redistricting could jeopardize the political futures of at least nine incumbent senators and perhaps more.

Exact political realignments in the St. Louis, St. Louis County and Jackson County areas could not be determined immediately.

The secretary of state's office gave up on that problem and turned it over to the local election boards for analysis. Maps used by the senatorial redistricting commission used only census tracts and ignored precinct and ward lines.

Six Democratic senators were crowded into three districts and three other Democrats had their district numbers changed, leaving a two-year gap in their political careers.

The six thrown together were Sens. Robert A. Young of St. Ann and John D. Schneider of Florissant in the new 8th District of St. Louis County; Omer H. Avery of Troy and Norman L. Merrell of Monticello in the new 19th of northeastern Missouri; and J.F. Patterson of Caruthersville and Nelson B. Tinnin of Hornersville in the new 33rd of the bootheel. Patterson is president pro tem of the Senate. Young has said he wants to run for Congress next year when new congressional districts are set up by the federal court.

Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, a Democratic candidate for governor, is one of the three affected by a district number change.

He is in the middle of a four-year term from the old 22nd District but his home county of Jefferson will be the new 25th District, which must elect a senator next year.

Thus, if he is defeated for governor and serves out his full senatorial term until 1974, he would find an incumbent already representing his county in the new 25th.

Two others, Sen. A. Basey Vanlandingham, D - Columbia, and Sen. William J. Cason, D - Clinton, were left high William J. Cason, DClinton, were left high and dry because they now serve in odd-numbered districts but their home counties were thrown into even-numbered districts which do not elect until 1974.

Thus their present terms will expire next year but they'd have to wait until 1974 for another senatorial election in their areas.

Cason is majority floor leader in the Senate, a job Vanlandingham formerly held.

Back-to-School Annual Section Coming Sunday

This Sunday The Democrat-Capital publishes its annual area Back To School Section, filled with news concerning school registration and openings throughout the area including Pettis and surrounding counties.

New teachers employed in the expanding effort to improve education on all levels are listed, as well as information concerning bus schedules and school improvements completed during the summer vacation.

On Sunday, Aug. 29, The Democrat-Capital will once again publish the special aack to school edition with pictures of area students beginning their college careers.

Persons desiring publication of a student's picture should either bring to The Democrat or mail a billfold-size black and white glossy photograph with the student's name, address, parent's name, high school attended, college to be attended, and expected major. Pictures and information must be received at The Democrat by Aug. 24.

He directed his opposition to the St. Louis plan.

Phase one of that plan, he said, would cost $630 million, or $20 million a mile for underground lines. Kansas City's plan on the other hand, would use buses and would cost only $90 million for the first phase, or $2.1 million a mile.

"Kansas City's approach to this common transit problem is a sensible one," he said. "But its rapid transit fortunes are intertwined with ours. I feel sorry for Kansas City."

"Unless our political leaders undercut and campaign against it, I believe St.

Louisans will support the proposed $475 million state highway bond issue alone."

He suggested going ahead with the proposed new metropolitan airport in Illinois and then establish a rapid transit bus line between that airport and Lambert in St. Louis, with stops in St. Louis and Clayton.

It would be paid for, he said, with the revenue generated by the airports.

Jack Stapleton Sr. of Stanberry, commission chairman, said the commission would not make any immediate decision.

Supporters of state aid to rapid transit appeared Thursday. They included St. Louis Mayor A. J. Cervantes, Kansas City Mayor Charles B. Wheeler and others from the Kansas City and St. Louis metropolitan areas.

They said rapid transit and an improved state highway system go together and should be considered together in any long range program of improving transportation in the state.

Some said the Highway Department should be transformed into a Department of Transportation. One, State Rep. Charles Valier, R-St. Louis, said he believed such a change would be approved by the legislature if the commission recommended it. Legislation to make such a change died in the 1971 legislature.

Alderman John Roach of St. Louis said a bond issue involving only highway funds would be defeated in the St. Louis city and county area by up to 175,000 votes.

City people, he said, "are sick and tired of air pollution and congested highways."

The chairman of the Metropolitan St. Louis Chamber of Commerce Transportation Committee, Eugene F. Williams, said there is great pressure from the average citizen in the cities for a mass transit system.

Pushes For Bond Issue

Warns Highway Commission of 'Razzle-Dazzle'

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Joseph L. Badaracco, Republican president of the St. Louis Board of Aldermen, told the State Highway Commission today not to be fooled by "the razzle-dazzle of the big spenders."

Push instead for a $475 million bond issue for state highways only and don't include money for rapid transit in the Kansas City and St. Louis metropolitan areas, he said.

Badaracco appeared alone before the commission a day after teams of leaders from St. Louis and Kansas City urged the commission to give the metropolitan areas $225 million of the bond issue for rapid transit improvements.

He called the St. Louis rapid transit plan "the ill-conceived, hastily contrived suggestion of combining rapid transit funding with the state highway road bond program."

"I assure you that I am not a nonspender, but I am a cautious spender," Badaracco said. "Having been elected as a Republican in a land teeming with Democrats, I do believe that my views are somewhat representative of more than a few in the community—those who want our meager dollars well spent."

Handicapped Priest Spreads Cheer

By JOHN LUNDQUIST
Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Father Paschal Kelly makes a round of visits with patients, spreads cheer in the hospital lobby and occasionally says Mass in the chapel.

It's no more than you'd expect of any hospital chaplain.

But Father Kelly spends most of his time flat on his back, helpless except for a little finger movement, turning his head and quietly talking with friends.

In the 67-year-old Roman Catholic priest, it's the spirit that blooms.

Although a victim of multiple sclerosis more than 30 years, he counts his blessings.

"People have been so kind to me," he tells a visitor. "I'm so grateful for all the things that come my way."

Father Kelly regards himself as a self-appointed special chaplain at St. Mary's Hospital, where he has been confined nearly 15 years. And you can tell there's something unusual about Room 1016 at St. Mary's before you enter.

Planted in the hall at an angle just outside the room is a 20-by-12-inch mirror propped on a six-foot wooden stand anchored by a cement block. Except for the mirror, it's all painted hospital white.

The reflection shoots an image into a mirror propped on a chest near the foot of the priest's bed. This is aimed at another mirror suspended from the headboard, so Father Kelly can see what's doing out in the hall.

He has other props. A second mirror on the chest angles out the window. He can watch chugging barges or other traffic on the winding Mississippi River. To his prism-equipped glasses are fastened a curved mouthpiece and a small hearing aid. These enable him to converse on the phone when he presses his head slightly to the left, activating a special switch.

Another switch, mounted on a board just to the right of his head, flicks the color television set from one station to another.

Father Kelly enjoys all the equipment, most of which was rigged up by hospital electronics specialist Ed Lanctot.

Helped into a wheel chair pushed by a nurse, Father Kelly multiple sclerosis and went to Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn. Despite the onset of the crippling disease, Father Kelly was an assistant pastor at Holy Rosary Church, Minneapolis, and said Mass from a wheelchair in the years 1944 to 1956.

Now, considering the view from his tenth-floor window of new buildings altering the city's skyline, Father Kelly regrets the loss of signs of earlier days. "They're turning this prairie village into a hodgepodge," he says in irritation.

He laments also that his generation is leaving young people with so many formidable problems.

"I'm a great admirer of these CO's (conscientious objectors)," he says. "These boys have the courage to stand up against the trend. Apparently the young breed doesn't want to be pushed around. And perhaps that is our salvation."

As for modern trends in religion, Father Kelly says the fundamentals are unchangeable. "They're there, as they always have been. These frills about guitar playing don't bother me a bit."

Lost SS Payments Will Be Replaced

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — Replacement Social Security checks totaling $80,000 will be issued next week unless the originals are found, officials said Wednesday.

The $80 checks, mailed out of Chicago, were due to arrive for Hannibal area residents on Aug. 3 or 4. Investigators say they were misdirected or stolen.

Wyatt Miller, district manager of the Social Security Administration, said he has sent to Chicago the names of 550 persons who reported they did not get their checks, and he expects to send another 300 names.

Medicines Of Future Are Filled With Hope

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — "PG's" promise to be tomorrow's astounding new medicines, with many uses, such as:

—A perfectly safe, once-a-month birth control tablet.

—Or if pregnancy has occurred, a safe drug to bring about abortion.

—Or a drug to shorten the time a woman is in normal labor.

—A potent medicine to reduce high blood pressure, to boost dangerously low pressure, to pull people out of shock, or to save them from congestive heart failure.

—A drug to cure or prevent stomach ulcers.

—A drug to combat the pains and swellings of arthritis.

—And perhaps some yet unpredictable roles in human health.

"PG's" mean prostaglandins, hormone-like chemicals that occur naturally in most cells of the body. The largest amounts occur in human semen, and they became named prostaglandins because at first the male prostate gland was thought to be their source.

There are at least six primary PG's, producing different effects.

They are so potent that one billionth of one gram—one gram is 1,28th of an ounce—can produce a physiological effect.

They were discovered in 1934 by Dr. Ulf S. von Euler of the Karolinska Institute in Stockholm, a Nobel Prize winner in medicine and physiology in 1970.

Dr. von Euler back then isolated a factor from the seminal vesicles of sheep that acted to lower blood pressure, and that also produced contractions in the smooth muscle lining the uterus or womb. He coined the name prostaglandins.

Progress toward application had to await mainly some brilliant work by chemists to purify PG's from animal material—a ton of sheep glands yielded only one 500th of an ounce of PG—in order to identify it, then to make it synthetically, then to sort out and synthesize the major prostaglandins in pure form.

And this was done, by such researchers as Dr. Sune Bergstrom and associates of the Karolinska Institute; Drs. John C. Babcock and Philip B. Beal, and Frank H. Lincoln of the Upjohn Company in Kalamazoo, Mich., by Dr. Elias J. Corey and associates at Harvard University.

Closest perhaps to general use are PG's in birth control, thanks in main part to pioneering work by Dr. Sultan M.M. Karim of Makerere University School of Medicine in Uganda, and Drs. Marc Bygdeman and Nils Wqvist of the Karolinska Institute.

They first used a prostaglandin to induce labor, near a woman's term. Then they used PG to induce abortions, as late as five months in pregnancy, by infusing the drug into a vein. The PG's worked in both cases by bringing about contractions of the uterus or womb, a normal event during childbirth.

PG's apparently can also act to prevent a fertilized egg from becoming implanted in the wall of the uterus, or from being maintained there.

Dr. Karim reports initial success in using PG's for contraception with tablets of PG inserted into the vagina at the expected time of menstruation.

If a woman had already conceived, the PG would induce a very early abortion, Dr. Karim explains. If she had not conceived, normal menstruation would occur. He suggests the tablets could be used only in months when a woman's period became late, raising the suspicion she had become pregnant.

Dr. Bygdeman has induced abortions by instilling PG in liquid form into the uterus, finding this method permits lower dosage, and hence less chance for side effects such as nausea, compared with infusion into the bloodstream.

How soon may arrive the PG contraceptive tablet, or safe method of abortion? Clinical research first has to be done to establish that PG's are safe. It is thought they would be because they are naturally occurring substances in both men and women.

Through stepping up or calming down blood pressure, other PG's show promise of becoming agents to control shock—when blood pressure drops dangerously—congestive heart failure, and perhaps even coronary artery disease, say recent reports to the American Heart Association.

Other researchers report evidence that PG's can control the flow of gastric juices and acids, thus offering a possible way of preventing or curing stomach ulcers. Still others report indications that PG's might be useful in overcoming male sterility and in combating arthritis and rheumatism.

Barbecue Benefit For Scout

VENICE, Ill. (AP) — An Eagle Scout who June 4 suffered a broken neck and crushed cervical cord in a diving accident will be beneficiary of a mammoth barbecue in this Madison County community.

Mayor John E. Lee said Thursday more than 1,000 tickets at 60 cents each for a barbecued pork sandwich have been sold for the Aug. 21-22 barbecue.

A project originally of the Lions Club, Lee said, the benefit has drawn the support of churches, civic groups and service clubs in addition to the Boy Scouts.

Ventriloquist Sees Good Side To Costly Blaze

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Bekl Jenkins figures there's a bright side to the fire which caused $1,850 damage to his home and possessions. He was able to save his seven dwarfs.

Jenkins, a 33-year-old ventriloquist and magician, lives in a house once occupied by Walt Disney. For 10 years he has been collecting mementoes of the late cartoonist and film maker. Jenkins plans to turn them over to a Walt Disney museum being planned in Burbank, Calif.

"I guess most of my things are okay because I got the Disney stuff out first," Jenkins said.

The dwarfs are solid rubber and would have burned rapidly if he had not reached them Tuesday night.

His prize possession was undamaged. It is the door to Disney's old apartment. The door is covered with numerous drawings of famous Disney characters.

Jenkins said Disney lived in the house in 1923 but was evicted because he could not pay the rent — $3 a week.

On Busing

Critical of Nixon Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Civil Rights Commission says school-desegregation efforts may be seriously undermined by President Nixon's policy that busing should be used only as a last resort.

"What the nation needed was a call to duty and responsibility for the immediate elimination of the dual school system, and for support of all those school officials who are forthrightly carrying out their legal obligations," said the commission, headed by the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, president of the University of Notre Dame.

President Nixon this week directed federal agencies to work toward desegregation wherever possible without resort to busing.

"Unfortunately, the President's statement almost certainly will have ... the effect of undermining the desegregation effort," the commission said.

"The President does not offer an alternative to implement the desegregation of the nation's schools. Had he presented an effective alternative, the statement would have found acceptance among those who have waited 17 years after the Supreme Court decision on school desegregation to see the law of the land implemented."

The commission said effects of Nixon's Aug. 3 antibusing statement on the Austin, Tex., school desegregation case will be to erode the position of school administrators who have put themselves on the line to implement the law.

Nixon said at that time that he favors no more busing than required by law.

Alabama Gov. George C.

Wallace, meanwhile, announced in Montgomery he was ordering the transfer of a white student who had been assigned to a predominantly black school 22 miles from her home.

He said he was trying to "help the President carry out his wishes." Wallace asked Nixon to join him in ignoring court orders for desegregation "if he is against busing, as he says he is."

The commission said busing has become an emotion-laden word—meaning more than just a mode of transportation.

"What is at issue in this matter," it said, "is not—to use the President's phrases—busing for the sake of busing or even busing solely for racial balance. The major issue is the kind of education available at the end of the trip."

Big Profit Sought On 'Ike's Dollar'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government hopes to earn more than $100 million from sale of the Eisenhower silver dollar, making it the most profitable U.S. coin ever minted. It also may be the last made of silver.

The profit will be stretched out over several years as the U.S. Mint disposes of some 150 million Ike silver dollars to collectors and others interested in buying it at a premium.

Mary T. Brooks, director of the mint, says she hopes the sale will net the Treasury well in excess of $100 million, although she said she can provide no exact profit estimate.

"It goes to the taxpayer, right into the Treasury," she said. "The mint isn't trying to make any money."

The silver dollar, first minted in the United States since 1935, is being sold at two prices to the public—$3 for mass-produced uncirculated coins and $10 for the highly polished, high-relief proof coin.

According to Mrs. Brooks, orders for the silver coin bearing the likeness of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower "are coming in by the millions."

"We hope to make $1 each on the uncirculated dollars," she said. The mint plans to strike 130 million of those.

She would give no estimate of profit—or loss—on the $10 proof coins, which are minted by hand, polished with diamond dust, and sealed in a plastic case.

"We're very modest in our prices on our proof coins," she said. "A proof coin we sell for $5 here goes for $12 and $15 overseas."

In the past, the Treasury has picked up no more than $4 million a year from its proof-coin sales. And, the total profit last year on both proof and uncirculated coins for collectors was about $9 million.

She said it probably will be the last silver coin ever minted in the United States.

Enemy Shells Bases

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese shelled two more South Vietnamese bases just below the demilitarized zone today in the second successive day of intensified action along the northern frontier.

U.S. B52 bombers countered with their heaviest strikes in more than two weeks in the region in an effort to keep the enemy from massing for a major offensive.

North Vietnamese gunners slammed 150 mortar and rocket shells into Alpha 1 and Alpha 2, bases at the eastern end of the DMZ.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, spokesman for the South Vietnamese command, said some government soldiers were wounded but none was killed in the predawn shelling. He said he did not know what damage was done. South Vietnamese tanks are based at Alpha 2, a half mile south of the DMZ. Alpha 1 is 1 1/2 miles south of the DMZ.

Hien also said he didn't know the locations of the enemy launching sites. The 82mm mortar and 107mm rockets used in the attacks could reach the two bases from positions inside the six-mile-wide buffer zone.

The attacks along the DMZ began Thursday, breaking a lull in the war.

Hien said he believes the North Vietnamese will select one base as an objective, then concentrate on it in an all-out assault aimed at overrunning it. He pointed out that the North Vietnamese used this tactic last June when they overran Fire Base Fuller, the westernmost South Vietnamese base along the DMZ. Fuller was later reoccupied by Saigon forces.

"I think all of the shelling of the past two days are aimed at finding a weak point they can choose as their objective," said Hien.

The B52 Stratofortresses dropped 450 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese positions in the northern sector of South Vietnam.

Other B52s struck on the Laotian side of the border against North Vietnamese reinforcements and supplies. The targets included suspected base camps, troop concentrations and storage depots.

Most of the strikes were west and south of Fire Base Fuller and Cam Lo, the district's military headquarters. Both Fuller and Cam Lo were attacked Thursday.

The South Vietnamese command reported more than a dozen rocket, mortar, artillery and ground attacks against a half dozen bases and outlying positions Thursday.

Hien said ten 122mm rockets hit Charlie 1, a base 5 1/2 miles south of the DMZ. There were no casualties, he said.

A spokesman for the U.S. Command, Maj. Richard Gardner, said there were no reports of return fire by American long-range guns at Charlie 1.

The U.S. 175mm guns along the DMZ have a range of 20 miles and the 8-inch howitzers a range of 11 miles. Both could reach into North Vietnam.

Questioned about the duties of the committee, Mrs. Ellison said the committee would select a chairman and outline the format of the meetings as well as arrange publicity.

Restating the need for the committee, Mrs. Ellison and Mrs. Middleton said a "fear" existed between the school board and the community. "When a bond issue is 'sprung' on the public, everyone wants to know why," Mrs. Ellison said. "They don't know about the board's problems."

Handicap Group Changes Name

Members of Disabled Adults Rehabilitation Endeavor (DARE) changed the name of their organization to Mid-Missouri Association of the Blind and Physically Handicapped (MMABPH) last night in an effort to make the group more effective.

James Cunningham, 1518 East 10th, newly-elected vice-president of the group, said that the old name had caused some misunderstanding among blind and handicapped persons in the area. "A lot of blind persons don't consider themselves handicapped," he said, adding that several persons from Benton County were mistakenly under the impression that the organization was only for Pettis County residents.

Mrs. Beverly Wright newly-elected group president, said that the new name makes a distinction between blind and handicapped persons and should eliminate the first problem. Hopefully, the name "Mid-Missouri" will also bring in persons from outside Pettis County, she added. Mrs. Wright said the group hopes to bring persons "out from their four walls and away from the television so they can find out what's going on."

According to Mrs. Wright, the group will meet at 7 p.m. on the second Thursday of each month at New Hope Baptist Church, 664 East 16th, until a permanent meeting place can be located. She said the group is

Jaycees Endorse Election

The Sedalia Jaycees endorsed the proposed city hall bond issue at their meeting Thursday evening at the Bothwell Hotel.

The Jaycees endorsement followed a talk by Mayor Jerry Jones who outlined the proposed financing and building procedures. The mayor explained that the $600,000 bond issue had to be approved by the voters, however, the bonds would be retired with money from the city sales tax and no direct personal tax would be involved.

The Jaycees also decided to undertake a project to man the telephones Labor Day weekend to assist in the nationwide Jerry Lewis telethon for muscular dystrophy. Starting at 10:30 p.m. Sept. 5, the Jaycees and Jaycee Wives will man the phones for 20 consecutive hours. The local number, to be made public later, will receive pledges from area residents and civic organizations to be added to the national campaign.

Plans were also made for the annual chicken barbecue, the proceeds which go to local projects. David Gaspard was appointed chairman of that project by Jaycee president, Joe Doggett.

Ann Landers

Cancer Booklet Saves Her Life

Dear Ann Landers: Several months ago you urged your readers to write to the National American Cancer Society for a free booklet on breast self-examination. A few weeks later there was another letter saying that nearly 300,000 people had written for the booklet and how pleased you were because this meant that several hundred lives would be saved. My life was among them.

My booklet arrived on December 16. Although I had had a complete physical examination only two weeks before, I decided to give myself a quick breast examination and get it off my mind. The first spot I touched revealed a lump. To make a long story short, within hours I was scheduled for surgery. Even though the tumor was small it was malignant and the breast had to be removed. All further tests were negative but due to the location of the tumor, radiation was recommended and I spent four weeks in another city getting treatments.

Your column will always have special meaning to me. There are no words to express my gratitude. — Louise P., Maryland.

Dear Louise: Your letter was a thrill, and I thank you for it. Not only do I appreciate your sharing such a personal experience, but you have provided me with another opportunity to remind women to re-read that booklet and use it — or if you've mislaid it, write for another. The address: National American Cancer Society, 219 E. 42nd Street, New York, New York 10017.

Dear Ann Landers: My 19-year-old daughter goes to beauty school. She says it's a full-time job and she should not be expected to do anything around the house. My mother-in-law lives with us. I took my sister's two young children to raise when she became mentally ill and her husband left her. I tell you all this so you will know that we are plenty crowded and there is lots of work around here.

The question: The 19-year-old has her own room because the two younger children are boys. It looks like a tornado hit it because she is too lazy to keep it clean. She insists it is HER room and that I should leave the door closed and forget about it. According to her, if she wants to live like a slob it's her business. When friends or relatives come over I keep her door closed and hope they don't wander in, or I clean the room myself which I hate to do as a matter of principle.

Do I have the right to insist that she clean her room or does she have the right to live like a pig and keep the door closed? She has agreed to go by your decision. — Mrs. Tired.

Dear Mrs.: The girl has a right to live like a pig — when she has her own home. But she has no right to turn one of your bedrooms into a sty. (P.S. Offer to buy a new bedspread or some fresh curtains as an incentive.)

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to ask Pittsburgh Reader who is uptight because his secretary calls him by his first name, what does he call her?

I am a mature woman and a college graduate who works as a secretary. Most of the men in this office call all women by their first names. Some even refer to their secretaries as "the girl."

Any man who dislikes being called by his first name can easily prevent it by calling his secretary by her last name. — Call Me Mrs.

Dear Mrs.: I checked with several secretaries of executives in Chicago and only one secretary felt as you do. The overwhelming majority preferred to be called by their first names, even though they would not call the boss by his.

Neighbors Are Helping In Bad Seattle Times

SEATTLE (AP) — Residents of this economically depressed area are dipping into their pocketbooks (and pantries) to help feed hungry neighbors under a volunteer program composed more of sharing than charity.

Neighbors in Need operates 34 food banks in the Seattle area, and the organization distributed 33,000 cases of free food in the first six months of operation. It receives no government aid.

Seattle's soaring unemployment rate, now 15 per cent with cutbacks in the aircraft and aerospace industry, created a new class of poor—persons who despite their inability to put food on the table did not qualify for government assistance under present regulations.

For Neighbors in Need, the only requirement for help is hunger.

The program was founded last November by three church groups and now involves about 300 churches. At first the banks operated five days a week, but as more people learned about them and unemployment increased, the banks began running out of food. Now most operate only when they have food, usually for two or three hours for three days a week.

The Rev. Hal Perry, one of the program's founders, says he and others discovered many hungry persons could not get help under existing programs. Persons without cooking facilities cannot get food stamps, nor can single persons 18-50 years old. Some recently unemployed middle-class families own too much property to qualify for state or federal help. Others qualify for food stamps but can't afford to buy them after paying the rent and other bills.

At first, the organization served an estimated 8,000 persons per week but the number jumped after the state reduced welfare allowances in April. After a recent appeal for donations, the food banks served 13,000 persons in three days. The drive brought in $20,000 and 3,000 cases of food from King County residents.

Customers are predominantly older persons, many of them 40 to 50 years old, often with families and some out of work for the first time in their lives.

Children make up about 56 per cent of those relying on food banks, according to an estimate by the program's organizers. The demand has gone up since school lunch programs ended in the spring and rises toward the end of each month when food stamps and welfare checks run out.

Food comes from everywhere, according to Peggy Maze, coordinator for one food bank in the city's central area.

Moth Ball Odor Is Her Problem

By POLLY CRAMER
Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I bought a beautiful old cedar chest at an auction but the previous owner had used moth balls in it. We have tried everything to remove the odor, from a light sanding and prolonged airing to spray fresheners, but to no avail. My blankets and comforts smell so strongly of the moth balls that it takes all day to air them so I really need help. Thank you for the column. — PENNY

DEAR POLLY — I have two Pet Peeves. It seems the makers of that adhesive-backed plastic gummed tape could devise some method so the tape does not adhere to itself on the roll. I recently lost half of two rolls because of this and wished they could have been there to try to get a single end started from the roll to which it had adhered. Not only is this troublesome but costly, too.

I also think the makers of that popular milky white all-purpose glue could come up with a container that would not become clogged and sealed fast with the glue. I buy only the very small bottles as they do not seal over so rapidly. — ALMA

DEAR POLLY — When making hamburger patties I put a ball of meat in a plastic sandwich bag and pat into shape. These bags go into the freezer and stay ever so fresh and can be used one at a time if desired. — MARY

DEAR POLLY — I put two tablespoons of salad oil in a pint of hot water and while this is still warm I put in three or four good-sized rags and stir them around in the oily water. Wring them out and let dry and have good dust cloths that are cheap, too. Add lemon flavor if you want to be in style. — IDA DALE

Cosmetic-Type Surgery Can Prove Most Helpful

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I was in a car accident six months ago and was thrown through the window. I have four long scars that were sewed up on my face and a lot of holes and pits on my forehead from little pieces of glass cutting in. The doctor they took me to released me a couple of months later and I haven't seen a doctor since.

That doctor told me that plastic surgery doesn't make scars go away, it just narrows them a little and takes another year to heal. Would you tell me some facts about this kind of plastic surgery? How does plastic surgery help and how do I go about getting a good plastic surgeon?

A woman at work told me about getting rid of little pits and holes by having your face scrubbed and a new skin is formed. Is there such a thing? Does it leave your skin rough? Do I have to have my whole face done or just my forehead?

Dear Reader — Each case must be evaluated by a plastic surgeon but usually something can be done to improve the situation. It is true that scars will remain but they can often be made into such fine line scars that they are far less noticeable. Broad and unpleasant scars are cut away, the skin is undermined and sewed together under less tension, resulting in a better scar. The plastic surgeon can tell you if your scars are capable of improvement.

Yes, you can have your face scrubbed or sanded to remove the outer layer of the skin. The skin crusts over and when the crust comes off new pink skin is evident. The process literally peels off the areas where the pits and blemishes exist. It changes the pigment characteristics of the skin. Some individuals with more pigment in their skin will not be happy with the pink color in contrast to the color of the rest of the skin. This may determine whether a person needs all, none, or part of the face done.

Write or call your county medical society and ask for the names of plastic surgeons in your area who do cosmetic surgery. Your letter alone tells me that you would benefit from the consultation. If you really have a problem it could be of considerable importance to your whole life to have it properly cared for by a reputable cosmetic surgeon. Don't go to anyone for this purpose unless he is recommended by the county medical society.

Court Move Keeps Buena Vista Viable

The Buena Vista nursing home, which until a day ago faced the prospect of closing its doors for lack of funds, has been resuscitated by the County Court.

On Thursday the court informed Buena Vista officials that it would provide $2,000 a year to support the home for the balance of the year.

Beyond that, the court pledged to attempt to find funds in the regular county budget to help support the nursing home.

This is good news indeed for the 41 patients at Buena Vista, many of whom are indigent and would have to pay considerably more for the same quality of care in a private nursing home. We applaud the county judges for their decision.

We hope that the court will find the means to put Buena Vista on a permanent subsidy, and would hazard the guess that this can be done without too much difficulty.

One source of revenue that should open up next year would involve the elimination of the office of county superintendent of schools. In next August's primary the voters will have the option of abolishing this office by virtue of the number of county school districts falling below the statutory minimum.

This alone would save the county more than $6,600, based on last February's financial statement. There may well be other such places where a little here, a little there, can be put toward Buena Vista's support.

Undoubtedly the same kind of meeting of the minds that resulted in the current agreement can be depended upon to find a permanent solution to the Buena Vista problem.

"I'm a sucker for nostalgia"

In some areas, like the talks on limiting strategic weapons, the Russians act as though they are serious about improving relations with the United States. But wherever there is exploitable trouble, the Soviets behave as though they believe that Uncle Sam's bruises and scars from Vietnam are so painful that he will accept all manner of setbacks rather than risk another military confrontation.

Every Soviet success seems to embolden and strengthen the hand of the hawks in the Kremlin, causing them to gamble more recklessly as they shift from trouble spot to trouble spot. The danger is that the Soviets will push too far one day soon and find themselves in a searing crisis with the United States.

The prime danger area is still the Middle East. The Russians could keep pouring oil on the burning sands there until an explosion erupts that is beyond anyone's control. But almost as threatening is the conflict along India's border with East Pakistan. The Russians have signed a 20-year "friendship" treaty with the Indians that implies Soviet backing in any war with Pakistan. This could embolden the Indians to rush more quickly into military action if relations with Pakistan deteriorate further.

So far, in both the Middle East and the Indian subcontinent, the Soviets have won friends and influenced a lot of people simply by implying all-out military support. But they have not been dragged beyond the point of saying, "Here are the weapons, let's you and them fight."

Through this shabbiest kind of "diplomacy," using billions of dollars worth of weapons that are obsolete by Soviet standards, the Russians have achieved incredible advances in Soviet influence and prestige.

Since the mid-1950's the Russians have given Egypt $2.4 billion worth of military aid, most of it hardware. The Soviets have poured another $1.8 billion worth of arms into Syria, Iraq and other Arab countries.

Any country that pays the bugler to that extent is bound to want to call a tune or two.

Leaders of the United Arab Republic still give some lip-service to anti-communism, but Egypt is now so dependent on Soviet military assistance that it is a virtual satellite. Concomitantly, the U. S. has been pressured to provide huge amounts of arms to Israel, with the result that U. S. influence in the Arab countries has dropped just about as much as Russia's has risen.

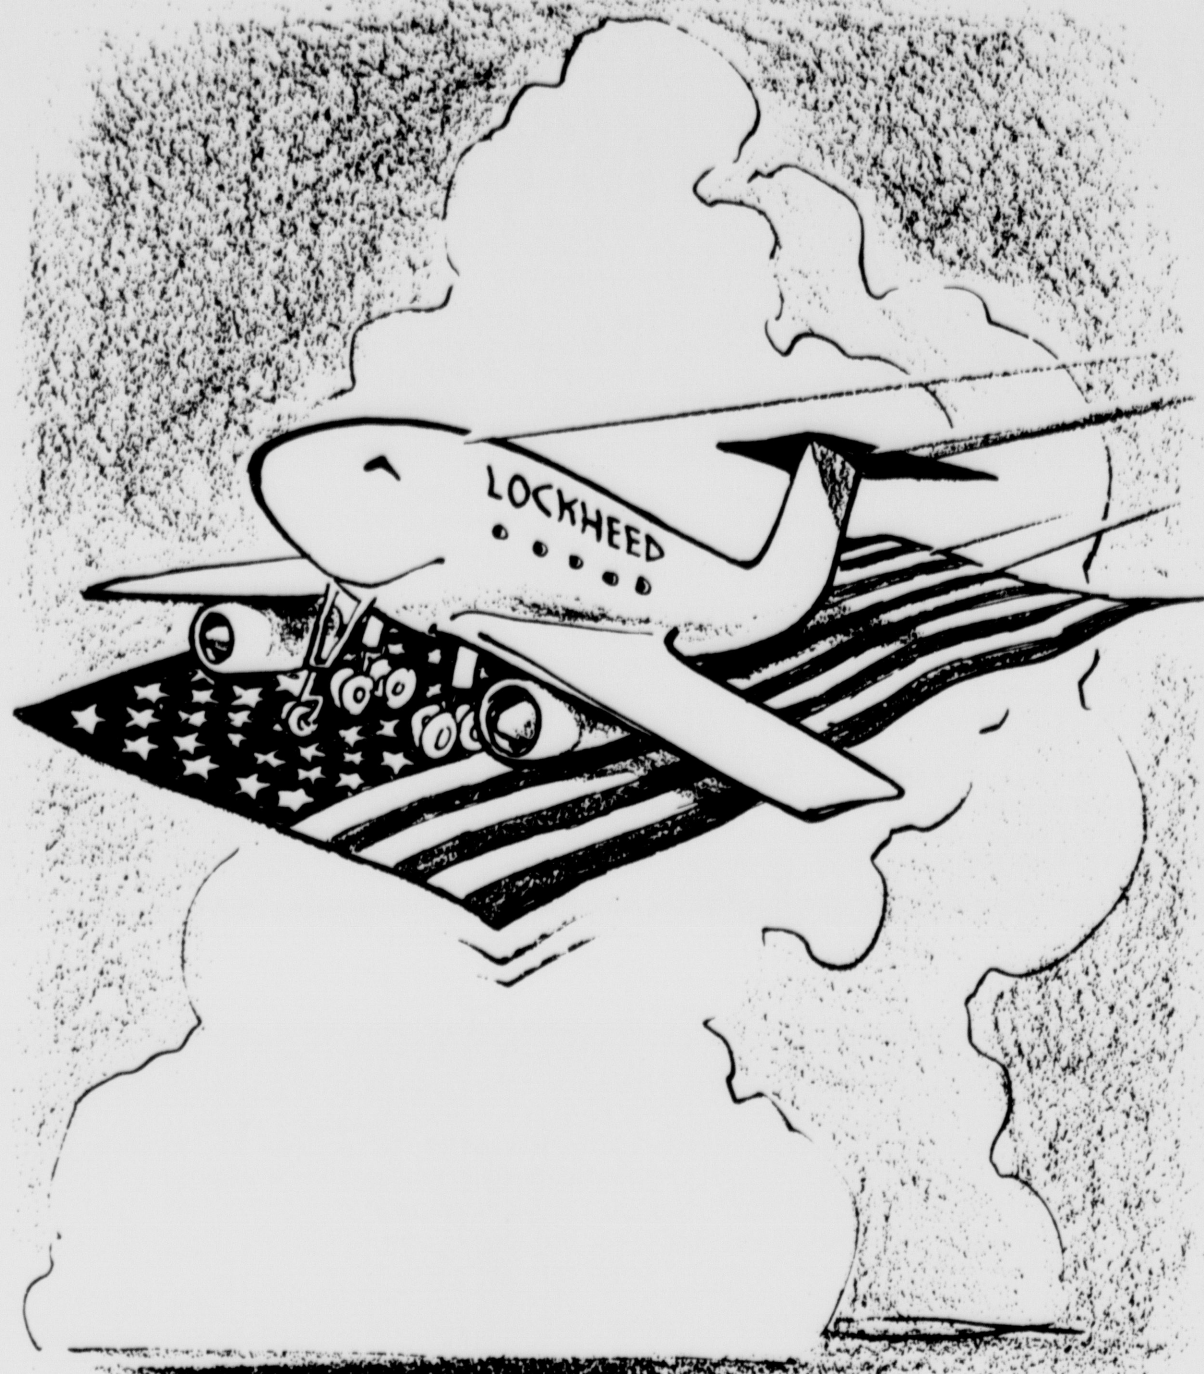

Few Indians would have dreamed 15 years ago that their country would today have such entangling military and economic ties to the Soviet Union.

This is truly a "Russian roulette" foreign policy in which the Kremlin gambles that neither the Arabs nor the Indians will provoke conflict in which the Soviets cannot sit aloof while their proxies fight. It is the kind of gambling that may be encouraged by doubts about the willingness of the United States to risk involvement in military conflict just when a terribly unpopular war may be ending.

But the Russians have recent evidence that their aggressive tactics can backfire. They squeezed some 2,000 people into the Sudan, including almost 500 "military advisers." Some of these Soviets got deeply involved in the recent abortive Communist-led coup, and now the Sudanese have thrown many Russians out, some quietly and some openly.

The Sudan fiasco was cheap compared with the cost of the Russians overplaying their hand in either the Middle East or the Indian subcontinent. Yet, there is not the slightest sign that the Kremlin is going to alter its policy of buying influence with arms that make warfare more palatable to people who can least afford to fight.

Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — While the cost of living continues to rise sharply for the rest of us, Rep. Morgan Murphy, the beefy freshman from Chicago, is finding that a member of Congress can make his costs go down.

Murphy has wheeled the Washington Hilton Hotel into giving him room and board, not to mention the comforts of VIP treatment, at a rate well below what less-blessed customers pay.

The congressman, a Democrat whose father is a close ally of Mayor Richard Daley, explained to us that he shopped around at various hotels before deciding to try to strike a bargain at the lavish Hilton.

"I asked those people if I could get some kind of a rate," he said. "They were nice to me." So Murphy moved into the Hilton last April and has been staying there every week Congress is in session.

Murphy denied the Hilton had any ulterior motive in giving him a good deal. It was because he was going to be a steady customer, he said.

Yet about the time the congressman moved in, insiders say, instructions were given by the hotel management that not only was he to get a choice room, a basket of fruit each Tuesday, flowers and other special favors, but he was to be billed only $14 for his $28 room.

The reason for the red-carpet treatment, according to the memorandum, was that Murphy represented a section of Chicago where Hilton has some important dealings.

The congressman denied he was paying half-fare, claimed his rakeoff was more like 20 or 30 per cent. He could remember only one basket of fruit and he denied there were any Hilton properties in his district.

Earl McDonough, manager of the hotel, denied that any special instructions were issued. Asked whether Murphy was getting VIP treatment and cut rates, he refused to comment and hung up the phone.

However, two persons have told us they saw the memorandum. They said it was sent to the various hotel department heads and was signed by McDonough.

A high-ranking General Services

Administration official has been transferred abruptly out of Washington after five women employees gave statements to investigators charging him with lechery.

The official, procurement chief Tommy T. Rose, vigorously denies he did anything improper. He concedes he got generous with his kisses at Christmas time, but he says the smooches were part of the holiday spirit.

Although none of the women complained Rose indulged in anything more serious than hugs and kisses, the GSA apparently considered the matter worthy of a full investigation.

The Compliance Division swung into action, holding interviews and obtaining sworn statements. When the report was in, a high-level decision was reached.

"He's being transferred to Texas," a GSA spokesman acknowledged.

The transfer will not affect his $29,000 a year salary.

Ersatz Cream — The next time a pretty stewardess flashes her smile and asks if you want "cream" in your coffee, ask whether she really means "sodium caseinate, sodium citrate, polyserbate, serbitan monostearate mono-and-biglycerides and beta carotene for artificial coloring." That's the gunk United Airlines, for example, serves in place of cream. The print is so small that we had to read it from the label with a magnifying glass. Similar fake cream is served on TWA, North Central and many other airlines. A few airlines still serve milk and cream mixes. Still others, such as Northeast and Frontier, don't tell you what you're getting, according to the labels we've collected, not even in microscopic print.

Dubious Hero — The American commando raid on the Son Tay prisoner of war camp failed, unhappily, because the North Vietnamese learned of the "secret mission" in advance and spirited the American prisoners away. Now Col. John E. Kennedy, formerly an intelligence officer with the Joint Chiefs, has been awarded a medal for "providing vital intelligence for the planning and execution" of the raid. The citation fails to mention that the intelligence was so shoddy the camp was deserted when American raiders arrived.

Who's Kidding? We reported recently that the huge Control Data Corporation was using a nationwide television survey as a foot-in-the-door for a series of personal, prying questions. The company asks people to list in a booklet the programs they watch during one week. If they agree, the booklet is sent. At the back, it contains a series of questions asking everything from how much deodorant they use, and what kind, to how much beer they drink and what kind. Peter Langhoff, president of the American Research Bureau, the Control Data subsidiary which does the polling, told us the company had never gotten any complaints about their questions. We have now learned, however, that thousands of the booklets are sent back with blunt, often angry objections to the personal questions.

I had an interesting visit with a young Vietnam veteran the other day. His name is Randall Young, 916 East Seventh, and he just returned from a year in Vietnam where he was a Spec. 5 avionics specialist with the 1st Air Cavalry Division.

In talking with him, I skipped his combat experiences, but instead asked his opinion about what many people think is now the greatest threat to our troops in Vietnam — drugs.

He told me that while drugs like LSD are mainly sent through the mail (one drop on a sheet of writing paper is enough to blow your mind several times), marijuana and "skag" (heroin) are ridiculously plentiful in Vietnam.

Of 300 men in his Chinook company, Randy said he estimated that at least 50 used drugs. He said a shakedown of his unit uncovered a kilo of marijuana and 10 vials of heroin.

He said he thought the Army was beginning to make headway against the drug abuse problem, but added, "I think they should have started a long time ago."

Incidentally, Randy wants to be a professional photographer in civilian life. Anyone having a slot open, and interested in hiring a Vietnam veteran, might keep him in mind.

Besides the shouts of vendors and carneys, this year Fair-goers will be serenaded by the continuous baying of coon hounds.

I say continuous because of the staggering mathematics of the coon dog competition, which is new to the Fair this year. Here's the way it works out:

Fair Secretary Wilbert Askew has predicted that as many as 2,000 coon dogs might enter the competition. There will be six dogs to a heat, swimming the length of a pool after a caged coon.

That means about 333½ heats would be required to complete the competition. Estimating that it takes an average of five minutes to run one heat, a total of 1,665 minutes would be needed to finish the competition, or 27.75 hours.

Two things are needed at this point: an earplug concession at the State Fair, and a good psychiatrist for that coon.

I've been meaning to clean out my desk, which has become something of a fire hazard, for several weeks now, but can't seem to get around to it.

Which would probably make me a good prospect for the Procrastinator's Club of America, which recently held its convention. The AP reported that the club formally endorsed the concept of zone numbers at its convention (not ZIP codes, ZONE numbers).

Members were asked to mail in their opinions on penny postcards.

No doubt some stretches of Sedalia's brick streets need to be blacktopped because of deterioration, but I hope they will spare a few.

There's something about tree-shaded brick streets that is a lot more attractive than tree-shaded curb-to-curb asphalt.

The morning mail brings a letter dated Tuesday from Belfast, Northern Ireland, by Mrs. Irene Kuhlman, former Sedalian and now Montessori teacher in St. Louis.

She writes that her bus was rerouted upon arrival in riot-torn Belfast, because of "trouble." Although she was apparently not an eye-witness to the civil violence, she senses the extent of it by the hushed remarks of shopkeepers and hotel clerks. She writes:

"The townspeople and merchants seem to feel tension—not many in the shops, not many on the streets, but many clerks behind the counters, idle."

Mrs. Kuhlman adds, "I am even afraid to make a visit to a Catholic church, which I usually do in every town I visit."

Russians Pursue a Reckless Foreign Policy

By CARL T. ROWAN

WASHINGTON — In typical triple-dealing fashion, the Soviet Union keeps pushing its luck in several troubled areas of the world.

In the sizzling Middle East crisis, in the ominous dispute between India and Pakistan, in the Sudan and elsewhere, the Russians move brazenly to enhance their own prestige while driving the United States into embarrassing impotence.

In some areas, like the talks on limiting strategic weapons, the Russians act as though they are serious about improving relations with the United States. But wherever there is exploitable trouble, the

Drugs No Hidden Secret

By PETER ARNETT and BERNARD GAVZER
Associated Press Writers

SAIGON (AP) — The Military Police sergeant looked us over, his eyes shaded by his shiny helmet liner.

"You wondering if these guys turn on with scag?" he asked, and then answered the question himself: "Climb in, I'll show you around. I'll point them out."

We were in Newport, the port area which is the largest remaining American logistics installation in Saigon. A half-dozen U.S. flag ocean-going freighters were unloading at docks lining the Saigon River.

We visited Newport because on the previous evening at the Starlight Bar in Saigon's gaudy Hai Ba Trung Street, a GI from Tennessee told us about Newport.

"We all use the stuff openly there," he claimed. "The officers are on it, the MPs are on it. Come out tomorrow and I'll show you around."

We met the friendly MP inside the gates. We climbed into the back seat of his jeep, discreetly out of view. We got the tour.

"See those guys that just walked in the gate?" the MP asked. "It was a group of young GIs in wrinkled tropical fatigues, and they kicked at the dust with their toes."

"I'll bet you they've got heroin vials on them. But you know something—Why should I bust them? They are probably either on the amnesty program, or will go on the program if I pick them up. And then if I bust them anyway, I'll have to bust nearly everyone in the place, and who the hell wants that?" our MP guide asked.

As our jeep swung on the main dock, we asked him, "But how many of the guys do you figure are on the stuff?"

He pondered the question briefly. "We have about 300 people here, on dock loading supervision, on maintenance. I'd say 200 are using something or other, and nearly 100 are on scag, on heroin, on the hard stuff," he said.

His estimates far exceed the reported findings of various investigators. In the first two days of a program to screen GIs being sent home, 7 to 9 per cent showed evidence of using heroin. The figure later dropped to 3 to 5 per cent. On the basis of several questionnaire studies, a congressional mission figured 15 per cent were using heroin. There are about a quarter-million American servicemen in Vietnam.

"Look," our guide told us. "Many of the MPs, my own guys, are on the stuff. There are officers on it. I know them, I'll point them out . . ."

The jeep turned onto a pier where the "Seatrains Florida" out of New York, and the "Rappahannock" were moored. "No one ever checks what goes up the gangways into those ships," said our guide. "The crews could be taking tons of scag back to the states, maybe they are."

We swung off the docks into a stretch of roadway alongside a high wire security fence. The tumbled shacks of an outer Saigon suburb seemed to be pressing like the sea against the fence.

"Stick around here after lunch, this is where the guys come to use the stuff. They trickle over here in twos and threes. They want a little privacy to turn on."

Later our jeep pulled up outside the main mess hall, a one-story prefab simmering in the heat. "Just look at them," said our MP guide as two soldiers stepped out of the mess hall door. "What do you think?" he asked.

The two were heavy-lidded, sluggish. They stopped to take deep breaths. They swayed on their feet. "They ain't been on booze," our guide said knowingly.

As another group of GIs came outside they were joined by a fresh-faced young lieutenant smoking a pipe. They gathered around him familiarly. "That guy started on the pipe a month ago; we think he has heroin in it, but then what do you do?" our guide said.

"But where does the heroin all come from?" we asked, and the MP said, "Just look outside the gate, at those Coke stands and fruit stands a few hundred yards up the road. They were moved from our gates after some bad publicity, but they are still there . . . The police arrest a few sometime and beat them up to please us, but someone always replaces them."

We walked over to the guard box at the entrance to the maintenance compound. We poked our heads inside the stuffy little room and a young, dark haired youth blearily looked up.

"How are you kid?" we asked. His lips moved but the words that came out were incoherent.

He had a loaded M16 automatic weapon in the box with him.

He's never off drugs, our guide told us.

Two-State Grants On Jobs Payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Missouri cities will get $13,510,000 and Kansas cities will receive $6,840,000 to create jobs under the new Emergency Employment Act, the Labor Department said Thursday.

The department allotted $600 million to 700 cities under the act signed Monday by President Nixon. The legislation eventually will provide $1 billion to create about 130,000 jobs.

Secretary of Labor J. D. Hodgson said an initial $90 million will start going out within a few days.

He said Vietnam-era veterans will be given special consideration.

Jail-Sharing Agreement Near

The city and county are "on the verge" of reaching an agreement for joint use of the county jail, it was revealed by Councilman George Lockett on Thursday.

Lockett, in addressing the Kiwanis Club at the Bothwell Hotel, said the agreement is expected before the city goes ahead with plans for the new city hall. Only one detention cell is provided for the police department in the building's plans, with all sentenced prisoners expected to be housed in the county jail, Lockett added.

Along with Councilman Leo Letourneau, Lockett explained features and financing of the proposed city hall, which would be paid for from sales tax revenues. Lockett stressed that although a bond election would be required for the new building, no additional tax would actually be levied.

The bond election will be held Sept. 14. "We've got to have a new city hall, that's all there is to it," Lockett said in referring to the decrepit condition of the present building, which he said has been condemned for more than 30 years.

Letourneau explained the design features of the $600,000, two-story building. He said there would be 100 gallery seats in the new City Council chamber, which would be available for the use of civic groups.

In response to a question on expected sales tax revenues, Lockett said the city has revised its original expectation that $700,000 would be collected the first year. Now a figure between $500,000 and $700,000 is thought to be more realistic, he said. But he added city officials are confident at least $100,000 a year can be saved from this source to pay off the city hall bonds.

The speakers were introduced by Herb Taylor.

Guests included Jim Lovercamp, who won first place in showmanship at the recent 4-H Show and Sale, and his father, Fred Lovercamp. Jim's trophy was provided by the Kiwanis Club.

Birthday greetings were extended to Jim Ryan, and singing was led by Abe Rosenthal, accompanied by Mrs. Lillian Maynard.

Blame Propellant For Chute Failure

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — An acid-like rocket propellant which "eats through nylon like crazy" may have been responsible for the collapse of one of Apollo 15's parachutes, a space agency source says.

All of Apollo 15's three parachutes opened properly, but one collapsed while the spacecraft was drifting toward splashdown over the Pacific Ocean north of Hawaii last Saturday.

The collapse of the chute caused man's fourth moon mission to return to earth about two miles an hour faster than usual but created no difficulties for the astronauts other than a jolting splashdown.

A space center source said Thursday the parachute apparently collapsed after fuel and oxidizer from the small rocket thruster system was jettisoned.

"The oxidizer in this system is highly corrosive," said an official familiar with the problem. "It can eat through nylon like crazy."

The parachute panels and its shroud lines are made of nylon. Astronaut Alfred M. Worden indicated the cause of the collapse could be the rocket propellant. During a news conference Thursday with his Apollo 15 crewmates, David R. Scott and James B. Irwin, Worden described the parachute problem this way:

"We saw through the window that all three chutes were out. We have a requirement to dump excess fuel on board. We did and when the window cleared again, we saw one chute had collapsed. There's a possibility the fuel had something to do with it."

Had one more parachute collapsed the spacecraft more than likely would have been crushed by impact when it hit the water, a space agency official said.

The Apollo 15 astronauts spent most of Thursday in continued debriefings on their 12-day moon mission.

Scott and Irwin broke away long enough to go to the Lunar Receiving Laboratory to see a very special moon rock, a fist-sized fragment of white crystal which Scott and Irwin had described as possibly part of the original lunar crust. Called "the Genesis rock," it was among the approximately 180 pounds of moon rock brought to earth by Apollo 15.

Geologists said the rock appears to be almost pure plagioclase, a type of rock crystal formed from a molten material.

Prices on Market Show Upward Spurt

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices shot ahead Thursday in brisk trading as a rally moved into its second day.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 12.63 points to 859.01. On Wednesday, it rose nearly 7 points.

Advances outnumbered declines on the New York Stock Exchange by nearly 4 to 1.

Big Board volume climbed to 15.9 million shares from 11.4 million Wednesday.

Analysts said the buying was sparked by bargain hunting among some sharply depressed issues. On Tuesday, the market sank to its lowest level since January.

Dummit Gets Nod In Rams' Contest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quarterback Dennis Dummit was passed over by all the National Football League teams during the draft, but he'll guide the Los Angeles Rams against the Cleveland Browns Friday under the watchful eye of his former college coach.

Tommy Prothro, Dummit's coach at UCLA and now field boss of the Rams, probably will let the 6-foot-0, 180-pound rookie call the signals in the second half, but is quick to add that Roman Gabriel remains the club's No. 1 quarterback.

Dummit sparkplugged the UCLA offense his last two years and Prothro was influential in the Rams signing the quarterback as a free agent.

Cleveland Coach Nick Skorich plans to use sophomore Mike Phipps at quarterback. Phipps spearheaded three long scoring drives last Sunday as the Browns bowed to San Francisco 38-24.

Meanwhile, Fran Tarkenton, star quarterback of the New York Giants, reached an agreement with the team. The scrambling signal caller's signing of a one-year pact ended the four-day-old dispute that started when he walked out on the Giants in Houston.

Wellington Mara, club president, said Tarkenton could face disciplinary action "as Coach Alex Webster sees fit."

Tarkenton said he was "very happy with the signing. I'm sorry for what I did on Sunday. I admit it was a hasty move."

In Friday's other exhibition clash, the Miami Dolphins host the San Francisco 49ers in a nationally televised game.

Still smarting from last week's 27-10 setback by Cincinnati Dolphins Coach Don Shula plans to spice Miami's ground attack with Jim Klick and Larry Csonka.

The two running backs reported late to training camp because of a contract dispute and saw only one quarter of action each against the Bengals. The lethargic Miami rushing attack netted only 24 yards in the game.

Nine exhibition games are slated for Saturday—Chicago at Baltimore, Cincinnati at Detroit, Houston at St. Louis, Atlanta at Kansas City, Pittsburgh at Green Bay, New Orleans at Dallas, Washington at Denver, New York Jets at Oakland and Minnesota at San Diego.

Determined not to have repeat of last Saturday's fiasco when rookie center Danny Ryczek high-snapped the ball over punter Mike Bragg's head against San Diego, Washington Redskins Coach George Allen persuaded George Burman to come out of retirement.

Burman centered for the Los Angeles Rams and also saw duty as an offensive guard and tackle.

Sunday's preseason game pits the New York Giants against the New England Patriots. The slate of 13 weekend games ends Monday with Buffalo at Philadelphia.

Norm Snead, who has called signals for losers during most of his 10 NFL years, will start with the winning Vikings against San Diego.

The Giants and Rams traded offensive tackles, with Rich Buzin going to Los Angeles and Joe Taffoni assigned to New York.

Hart To Start For Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bob Hollway's instituting a new regime at Busch Stadium Saturday night for the St. Louis Cardinals, but the National Football League team will operate with a carryover quarterback.

Hollway, after watching Jim Hart and Pete Beathard battle vigorously for the position through three weeks of training, has selected Hart as the starter.

Hart, Hollway indicated, will go all the way against the more-seasoned Houston Oilers with Beathard's turn to come

LaMonte Baptist

Wins Loop Crown

LaMonte Baptist Church blanked Nazarene, 12-0, in the opening game before winning the second contest, 16-13, to capture the Harmony Baptist Softball Association championship Thursday night at Housel Park.

Tom Millican was credited with the wins in both games. Larry Abbott was the loser in both the first and second contests.

Finishing behind champion LaMonte and runner-up Nazarene were New Salem Baptist, third; Flat Creek Baptist, fourth; Syracuse Baptist, fifth; New Hope Baptist, sixth; while First Baptist of Sedalia and Smithton Baptist tied for seventh.

Saints Invade Chiefs

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KANSAS CITY — The Kansas City Chiefs, fresh off a 10-7 win over the World Champion Baltimore Colts, return to Municipal Stadium to meet the Atlanta Falcons, Saturday night. Kickoff is set for 7:55 p.m.

The Atlanta game is the third pre-season meeting between the two teams. The Chiefs won the first encounter 14-10 in a 1969 meeting in Kansas City while the Falcons upset the Chiefs 22-17 last year in Atlanta.

The highlight of the Chiefs 10-7 victory over the Colts was the play of the defense which allowed the Colts only 128 yards total offense. The rush of the Chiefs' front four got to the Colts quarterbacks three times for 21 yards in losses. They also pressured the Colts into four interceptions. Emmitt Thomas picked off two and Bobby Bell and Willie Mitchell had one.

Offensively, the bright spot was a second quarter touchdown drive covering 67 yards on nine plays. A 19-yard pass to tight end Morris Stroud, a 12-yard run by Wendell Hayes and Dawson's 14-yard touchdown pass to Lewis Porter highlighted the drive.

Coach Norm Van Brocklin's Falcons will be making their pre-season debut when they take on the Chiefs.

Quarterback Bob Berry is expected to start for Atlanta with Jim "Cannonball" Butler and Art Malone at the running back spots. Jim Mitchell, the Falcons' Most Valuable Player in 1970, will start at tight end. Both wide receiver positions are virtually up for grabs and early indications are Van Brocklin will start a pair of rookies — Ken Burrow, the Falcons' second-round draft choice from San Diego State and Wes Chesson, the seventh-round pick from Duke.

The strength of the Falcons, who are entering their sixth professional campaign has been the defense.

Ends Claude Humphrey, a pro bowl performer and John Zook, former Kansas All-American, give the Falcons one of the best duos in the NFC. The linebacking corps is rated as the heart of the Falcons defense. Tommy Nobis, annually rated as one of football's top middle linebackers, will team with veterans Don Hansen and Greg Brezina. The latter missed all of last year with a knee injury.

Another former Jayhawk, punter Bill Bell, will handle all the kicking chores for the Falcons. Bell was the Falcons' 17th selection in the 1970 draft.

The game will be broadcast on the Chiefs' radio network

Carlton Sets Goal

Cardinals Inch Closer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Steve Carlton doesn't read palms but he does make predictions.

"I'm going to win four games on this road trip," said the St. Louis left-hander after the Cards defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 Thursday night. He has three to go.

To make four victories possible for Carlton, Cardinal manager Red Schoendienst is changing his starting pitching rotation from a five-man to a four-man. That will give Carlton an extra start on the trip.

"You have to think you're going to win every time you go out there," Carlton said.

"He's more consistent with his pitches than I've ever seen him—ever," Schoendienst said.

The victory leaves the Cardinals seven games behind the Pirates and Schoendienst was talking about what is necessary to give the National League East leaders a serious chase.

"We've got to win three out of four games here. We have eight games left with them. It's up to us. We have enough games with them. We've just got to beat them," he said.

The Pirates have lost 11 of their last 14 games and while the Cardinals and Chicago Cubs battle, they hold on to their fairly comfortable lead.

Carlton won his 16th game of the season, has six losses and says he is still thinking about the possibility of 25 victories.

He may have 11 or 12 starts left this season, meaning he would have to win nine of them.

The Pirates looked like they were going to make Carlton's prediction for victories an erroneous first inning.

Roberto Clemente's double after Dave Cash doubled and Gene Clines bunted for a single quickly gave the Pirates a 2-0 lead with none out.

Willie Stargell drew a walk but Manny Sanguillen struck out and Clemente was out trying to steal third on the play. Richie Hebner struck out after Carlton gave Bob Robertson an intentional walk to end the threat.

The Cards scored three unearned runs in the third off loser Luke Walker, 5-8, who allowed only four hits in seven innings.

Gene Allen bobbled a grounder by Dal Maxvill and Carlton followed with a bouncing single up the middle. After a force out, Ted Sizemore doubled for a run, another scored on infield out by Matty Alou and the winning run raced home on a bloop single by Joe Torre.

Carlton struck out 10 Pirates and got Willie Stargell three times, twice on called strikes.

"Willie's no patsy, however," said Carlton. "He kids me that he hates to see me pitch, but he gets his share of hits off me."

"Nobody's been hitting well," says Pirate Manager Danny Murtaugh. "Even Willie's been taking extra batting practice."

USA Strong, Cuba Surprising

Pan American Games Draw to Close Friday

CALI, Colombia (AP) — The flaming torch atop Pascual Guerrero Stadium will be doused in tropical twilight today ending the sixth Pan-American games—again dominated by the United States but spiced by fast coming Cuba.

Uncle Sam's athletic forces slipped slightly from their medal grab at Winnipeg in 1967, while Cuba, showing obvious Soviet training, impressively replaced Canada as the usual runnerup in the quadrennial games.

Including Thursday's historic cycling triumph by John Howard, an Army GI from Springfield, Mo., and a silver medal finish by the Yank Women's basketball team, the USA harvested 104 gold medals, 73 silver and 40 bronze, for an overall total of 217.

That compared with 120 golds, 63 silver and 42 bronze for a USA 225 total in the Winnipeg Games. Despite a defeat by Jamaica's Don Quarrie in the sprints, U.S. men's track power exploded for 12 of 16 gold medals. Uncle Sam's swimmers swept 14 of 15 events, plus both diving gold medals.

Cuba which unveiled a world record triple jumper in Pedro Perez and upset the Yank men's basketball team made tremendous gains since 1967.

With the USA cagers eliminated, Brazil Thursday won the men's basketball title by shading Cuba 63-62, with Puerto Rico taking the silver medal and Cuba the bronze.

The Cubans, who also dethroned the USA in basketball and men's and women's volleyball, and cracked American monopoly in wrestling, piled up 35 golds, 49 silver, and 24 bronze for 103 medals.

That contrasted with a weak Cuban Winnipeg performance of only 8 golds, 14 silvers and 26 bronze and 48 overall.

Although Canada's feminine stars fared well in track and field, swimming and equestrian competition, the Maple Leaf squad wound up with 18 golds, 20 silver and 40 bronze and 78 overall.

As a token force of some 3,000 athletes from 30 nations in the original field were slated to parade in the colorful closing ceremony, the USA still buzzed over the unprecedented triumph in the 198-kilometer individual road cycling race by the 23-year-old Howard.

Unlike track, swimming, baseball and basketball—in which a 20-year Yankee dynasty was shattered—cycling had not been the USA's strong point.

Howard clutched a rosary as he out-pedaled Brazil's No. 2 world class star, Luis Carlos Florez, by one second in the 122.7 mile grind. Howard became the first American cycling gold medal winner in PanAm history.

The USA's women cagers, with a 5-1 record, yielded the gold medal to unbeaten Brazil which Thursday defeated Cuba 66-62 after the USA closed with a 54-35 triumph over Ecuador.

Meanwhile, the USA's volleyball team was due to arrive today in Cuba for the regional Olympic eliminations at Havana with a somewhat sticky situation carrying over from the Pan-Am Games.

The USA still hasn't had a Cuba reply to a formal demand for an apology for an assault on an American gymnast by some Cuban athletes in a flag-raiding melee in the Pan-Am village Monday night.

Only one team will qualify at Havana for a volleyball berth in the Munich Olympics, and Cuba batted the Pan-Am gold medal from the USA, 15-6, 15-13, 15-10, in a windup match Wednesday night.

Dodger Loss Gives Giants 4-Game Lead

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

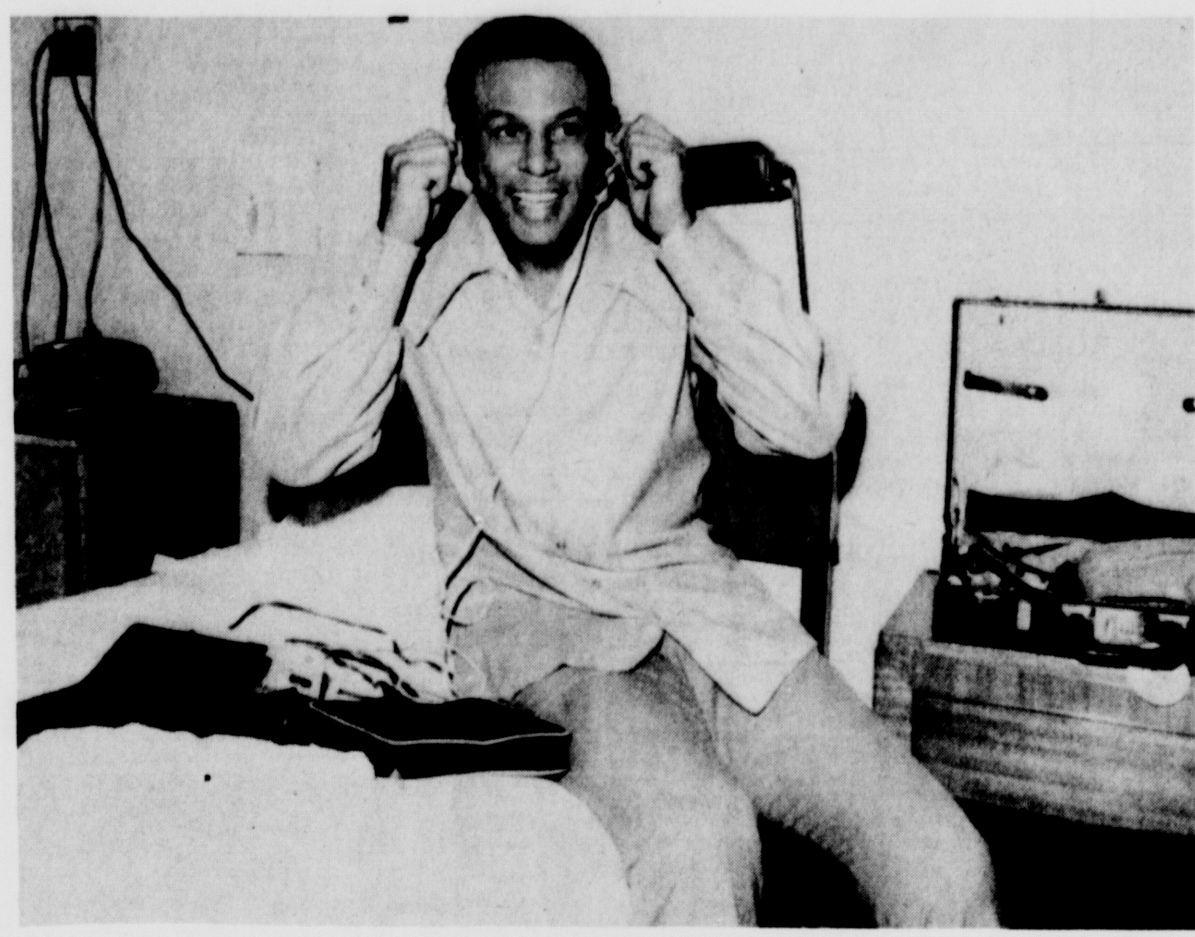

The San Francisco Giants, who have had a hard time beating anyone recently, took a day off and let the Los Angeles Dodgers beat themselves for a change.

It was a lift for their spirits, to say nothing of their lead in the National League West.

While the Giants didn't play, they improved their lead to four games over Los Angeles when the Dodgers fumbled over a 3-1, 13-inning loss to the Philadelphia Phillies Thursday night.

The Los Angeles' loss was good news to San Francisco, which had lost eight of 10

NBC Tourney Opens Tonight

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The 37th annual national tournament of the National Baseball Congress, drawing 32 non-professional teams, begins a 19-day run with a two-game program tonight.

The opening game at 6 p.m. sends the Arkansas champion, Fayetteville, against Fargo, winner of the North Dakota tournament. Wichita, Kan., Glass, runnerup in the Kansas state tournament, takes on St. Louis Lemay, the Missouri champion, at 9 p.m.

Between games there will be ceremonies at which recognition will be given Leroy "Satchel" Paige, recently inducted into the Hall of Fame; Tom Greenwade, New York Yankee scout; Tom Seaver, New York Mets pitcher; Allie Reynolds, former major league pitcher and now president of the American Association; and Bobby Boyd, Wichita, a former first baseman for Baltimore.

Seeded No. 1 in the double-elimination tournament that will continue through Aug. 31 is the 1969 champion and 1970 runner-up, the Anchorage, Alaska, Glacier-Pilots.

The Boulder, Colo. Collegians, national champions in 1966-67, were seeded No. 2, and the Fairbanks, Alaska, Goldpanners, third.

The defending champion, Grand Rapids, Mich., Sullivan, were seeded fourth. Others in order, were California champion Eureka Humboldt-Crabs; 1968 winner, Liberal, Kan., Bee Jays; Oklahoma titlist Lawton; two-time Arkansas champion Fayetteville; Natchez, Miss.; Oilers; and Midlothian, Ill.

Other games on the weekend schedule:

games and wasted most of a 10-game lead to the hot Dodgers.

Only three other games were played in the National League Thursday night as the Atlanta Braves crushed the Houston Astros 10-5, the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 and the San Diego Padres turned back the New York Mets 3-0.

Despite Thursday night's loss, Los Angeles shortstop Maury Wills feels the Dodgers will eventually catch the skidding Giants.

The Dodgers didn't look like winners against the Phillies, though. They had a 1-0 lead in the eighth when second baseman Steve Garvey's error opened the door for the tying run.

Then they wasted scoring opportunities in the extra innings before Philadelphia's Don Monney put it away with a two-run double in the 13th.

Rookie Earl Williams unleashed two homers in a four-hit night and knocked in four runs as Atlanta buried Houston under a 16-hit offense.

Williams had singled his first two times at bat before blasting a two-run homer in the fourth and a solo shot in the fifth, his 20th and 21st circuit clouts of the year. Williams also had a run-scoring single in the second inning to help Ron Reed coast to his 12th victory in 20 decisions.

Steve Arlin pitched a six-hitter and Ollie Brown ripped a two-run single as San Diego shut out New York for the second night in a row.

The Padres capitalized on four walks, an error and Brown's key hit to send New York starter Nolan Ryan to the showers with a three-run first. Arlin assumed control of the game after that.

Between games there will be ceremonies at which recognition will be given Leroy "Satchel" Paige, recently inducted into the Hall of Fame; Tom Greenwade, New York Yankee scout; Tom Seaver, New York Mets pitcher; Allie Reynolds, former major league pitcher and now president of the American Association; and Bobby Boyd, Wichita, a former first baseman for Baltimore.

Russell Hibbard, Slater, raced in the third heat race of the night and took third. Steve Schulz, Chillicothe, took the runner-up spot in the fourth heat race.

Bill Utz, Sedalia, is at Knoxville for the big annual national event, however, he did not draw to qualify Thursday night. He is scheduled to take his qualification runs tonight as the second half of the 115-plus car field takes the track.

The top 66 cars from time trials Thursday and Friday will qualify for Saturday night's three main races. The fastest 22 cars will be in the championship race with $4,100 going to the winner.

Total prize money for the field will be more than $22,000.

Windsor HS Grad To Attend SFCC

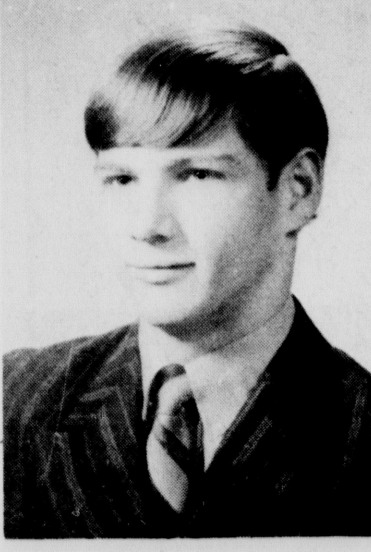

State Fair Community College baseball coach Foster McGuire announced Friday that Donnie Madol, a 17-year-old Windsor High School graduate, had signed an athletic letter of intent to attend the Pettis-Benton County Junior College the coming year.

Madol, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Madol, 301 East Kentucky, Windsor, is a pitcher and will play for the Roadrunners during the 1971-72 campaign.

Madol lettered three years in football and basketball at Windsor High School; during the summer he played for the Windsor American Legion baseball team, who carved out a 12-5 record this past season.

The drafting major was quite active in the Lettermen's Club, the Latin Club and a member of the National Honor Society while in high school.

Healthy Again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elgin Baylor, the soul of the Los Angeles Lakers, says he's healthy again for one last season in the National Basketball Association.

"There's no doubt this will be my last year," Baylor said Thursday. He will observe his 37th birthday the day before the Lakers start practice Sept. 17. "This is definitely the last."

The Lakers' captain played in only two games last season because of injuries. He underwent surgery for a torn Achilles' tendon on Dec. 2.

"I'd have retired after last season if I'd played a full season. Then maybe I would not play this year. I want to retire healthy, on my own. I don't want injury to force my retirement."

Baylor's career as a professional, which began in 1958 when the Lakers were in Minneapolis, also has been plagued with knee problems.

Both knees have seen extensive surgery. One is minus a quarter of a knee cap.

Yet the former Seattle University All-American from Washington, D.C., has scored 23,043 points in 837 games for a 12-season average of 28. He's among only a handful of NBA players to score more than 20,000 points in a career.

He's 6 feet 5, 220 pounds, shorter than most NBA forwards. But he's pulled down more than 11,400 rebounds.

Baylor doesn't feel his age will do more than make him pace himself during the long regular season.

"I don't say anything. I just go out and do it. If I'd listened to people, some of the people, I'd have retired years ago."

"There's no substitute for ability. Whether you're 15 or 50, it doesn't matter. I'm not speaking in my behalf, but I'd take ability over youth anytime. Of course, youth and ability together are great."

Fight Rages Behind O's

There is a famous philosophy credited to Satchel Paige that advises you never to look behind because someone might be gaining.

But the Baltimore Orioles, leading the American League's East Division by a comfortable eight games, might be tempted to take a peek over their shoulders anyway. There are interesting things going on back there.

For example, there is Detroit's Mickey Lolich, hidden by the Vida Blue excitement all season, but suddenly on the threshold of 20 victories for Detroit.

And then, there are the New York Yankees, enjoying the best record in the division since the All Star break with a 19-11 log that has them two games over .500 for the first time all year.

The Orioles, unconcerned by the shenanigans behind them, whipped Minnesota 8-2 Thursday night to maintain their AL East lead. Detroit took over second place with a 4-3 decision over Milwaukee—Lolich's 19th victory of the season. The Yankees made it eight victories in the last 10 games by sweeping a doubleheader from California 3-0 and 2-1 with the second game going 11 innings.

In other American League action, Oakland won over Boston, 9-2; Cleveland downed Chicago, 6-2; while Kansas City and Washington split a doubleheader. Kansas City captured the opener, 2-0, with the Senators edging past the Royals, 2-1, in the nightcap.

The Orioles jumped on Minnesota's Jim Kaat for three runs before a man was retired in the first inning and coasted over the Twins for a sweep of their three-game series.

Don Buford slammed the first pitch for a home run and Merv Rettenmund added a two-run shot later in the inning. Andy Etchebarren also homered for the Orioles and Jim Palmer fired a four-hitter for his 14th victory.

Lolich pitched a six-hitter and the Tigers broke a tie in the eighth inning with Bill Freehan's triple, the big blow to beat Milwaukee.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The grievance committee of the Playing Card Club was in session to hear complaints against players. The ace of spades, who is President and ex officio head of all committees, recognized his young brother, the ace of clubs.

The ace of clubs cleared his throat and remarked, "I have a very severe complaint against South. Not only did he fail to make proper use of me but he also used that horrible cliché 'aces are made to take kings' as he wasted my talents."

We will leave it to you to decide if the vote of censure passed by the committee was justified.

South plunked that ace of clubs on the king without any thought although he did take time to utter the cliché about 'aces taking kings.' Then he led a club back. East held the trick with the eight and led a trump. South played on but wound up losing four tricks.

South would have made his contract if he had simply played dummy's six of clubs at trick one. If West shifted to a trump South would draw trumps; take his king of hearts; enter dummy with that ace of clubs and discard one loser on the ace of hearts. If West led a second club South would wind up with an overtrick since he would be able to ruff a club and also discard a diamond on the ace of hearts.

Space Shuttle Is Super Vision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supercraft to its friends and super waste to its foes, the proposed 100-flight space shuttle is envisioned as a superbird in hand to those who seek its expensive nest.

Dollar Decrease Continues

LONDON (AP) — The dollar continued its plunge on the European money markets today reaching a record low in West Germany where the American currency came under its greatest pressure.

Dealers reported the dollar was being hit by preweekend nervousness that usually accompanies a monetary crisis. Another factor creating uncertainty in Europe was the Wall Street Journal's poll of leading American businessmen indicating a possible devaluation of the American currency, financial sources said.

In Frankfurt trading in the dollar opened at 3.3837 marks from Thursday's closing of 3.3850 marks, after a half hour, it had dropped to a record low of 3.3740 marks, and slipped even further in the next half hour to 3.3715 marks.

In London the dollar stood at 2.4197 to the pound sterling compared with $2.4194 at Thursday night's close. The rate was almost touching the pound's ceiling of $2.42 and the Bank of England was reported prepared to make further massive purchases of dollars to shore up the ailing American currency.

Financial sources estimated that the bank bought in about $250 million on Wednesday when large-scale support for the dollar became urgent in London.

Dealers reported many inquiries from speculators on the London market but relatively little business was done because of the mood of uncertainty.

In Zurich, Switzerland, the dollar rate dropped sharply to 4.03-04 Swiss francs well below the voluntary support level of 4.06 at which the Swiss National Bank offers to buy, transferring the equivalent to blocked accounts.

Swiss banking sources said the national bank has possibly taken in as much as $2 billion since the crisis started last week. These sources estimated that the bank bought up to $800 million on Thursday alone.

The national bank has already frozen the proceeds of dollars sales for 10 days.

Paris dealers reported quiet conditions on the foreign exchange markets with the dollar almost unchanged at 5.5127 francs. The Banque de France continued to buy at 5.5130 francs but it was not known how much it bought.

Rome dealers also reported that the gold and money markets were quieting down.

The dollar opened in Amsterdam at 3.4275 guilders and edd d to 3.4375, but dealers reported very limited trading. They said they believed the Netherlands Bank was not buying at present.

are vying to be home base for the shuttle that would take off as a rocket, land as a plane, but Capitol Hill shuttle supporters say Cape Kennedy, Fla., is virtually certain to win.

Thus far, Congress is flying with the space agency toward development of the shuttle, providing the first few hundred million of what early estimates indicate could be a $6-billion-to-$10-billion initial project cost.

"I think it's a key to NASA's future," says Dale Myers, associate administrator of the agency's manned-flight office. "The shuttle is a device to give us a whole new capability in space and actually in many ways revolutionizes our ability to get into and out of space."

Compared with $700 to $1,000 as the current price per pound for putting things in orbit around the earth, "the shuttle will reduce the cost of transportation in space to levels like about $70 a pound," adds Myers.

The price of the Saturn 5 rocket and the spaceship used in the Apollo moon-landing program is $325 million. None of the hardware is reusable.

Although the space shuttle remains billions of dollars and several years away from being America's ferry to the heavens for astronauts and some health average guys as well, it is a major economic vision for the 73 sites seeking to be its first home base.

California, for instance, touted both Edwards and Vandenberg Air Force bases: New Mexico for its White Sands Missile Range; Utah pressed for its Wendover Air Force Base; and Florida advanced both Elgin Air Force Base and the traditional Cape Kennedy site from which man first went to the moon.

Key congressional supporters although they say the d rather have the nation gain a new spacecraft, claim budget agency pressures already have ended the race and, Cape Kennedy will be home for the shuttle.

Space agency officials say the decision due this fall will be based on reports of specialists who visited several leading candidates.

Congressional space committees have accepted the space shuttle program with the understanding the vehicle—a two-part affair designed to make at least 100 flights—would have both booster and orbiter sections reusable and capable of landing like an airplane.

But some Capitol Hill supporters of the shuttle are willing to go along with developing a new-style orbiter while testing it on the current-type, one-time-only booster.

Developing a reusable two-part shuttle is expensive, Myers said, and NASA has been looking into "using an expendable booster to get the orbiter into orbit and develop the orbiter capabilities, then bring on the reusable booster later."

Under the one-time-booster, Reusable-orbiter plan, he said, the shots would have to be over water and thus Cape Kennedy would be the "first developmental and operational launch sites for the shuttle."

Under the reusable-shuttle system, an orbiter about the size of a 707 jet airliner would be carried piggyback aboard the booster, larger than a 747 jumbo jet, to about 50 miles above the earth. They would then separate, with both parts capable of landing like conventional aircraft.

The orbiter would deploy unmanned spacecraft, repair or retrieve satellites, perform rescue missions and eventually carry people and cargo to and from earth-orbit space stations. NASA told Congress that budget restrictions produced decisions to move ahead with the shuttle and to assign lower priority to the space stations.

Malcolm Lovell, assistant labor secretary for Manpower, announced Thursday that the department would approve $600 million in emergency employment money to create 150,000 public service jobs in 700 communities across the nation. The money is part of $1 billion allocated under the Emergency Employment Act signed Monday by President Nixon. Lovell said 20 per cent of the money, about $120 million, will be available to cities and states within a few days.

Apollo Explorers Leave Memorial

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 15 commander David R. Scott, terming the moon a dynamic place, has called for restoration of two canceled Apollo shots and eventual establishment of permanent science stations on the lunar surface.

Scott, James B. Irwin and Alfred M. Worden also told a news conference Thursday they had left in the gray dust of the moon a simple plaque and a tiny silver figure of a fallen man as a memorial to 14 who have died in the pursuit of space exploration.

"I believe we should explore the moon to a far greater extent than we are now," Scott said. "I think we should have a whole base of scientists up there, and I think we should have a Rover that would carry six or eight men. I guarantee they'll never get tired of finding things."

"Any place you go there's a wealth of material, new and unusual scientific data," Scott said. "I think the moon is indeed a fascinating place. I hesitate to use the words barren and desolate. To us the moon was dynamic, beautiful and it has character."

He said that from lunar orbit they spotted scores of places that could be explored, and he said that the two canceled Apollo flights, 18 and 19, should be restored "right now."

The two flights were canceled because of a reduced space agency budget. The Apollo program now is to end with Apollos 16 and 17 next year.

Scott told of the memorial left at Hadley Base, in the moon valley where he and Irwin explored for three days.

"I think many people have contributed to the pinnacles we've reached ... and we know a great many individuals who have contributed all they have," Scott said. "And because of that we left a small memorial on the moon."

"About 20 feet north of the Rover in a small subtle crater there is a simple plaque with 14 names," he said. "The names in alphabetical order are of all the astronauts and cosmonauts who have died in the pursuit of exploration of space. Near it is a small figure representing a fallen astronaut."

Renewed Rioting Strikes In Belfast, Londonderry

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Street clashes, sniping, fire bombings and arson hit Belfast and Londonderry on Thursday and Roman Catholics in ever increasing numbers streamed into Ireland to escape the orgy of death and destruction.

The violence which has been raging since last weekend took its 25th life early Friday when a guerrilla gunman was shot dead by a burst of gunfire from British soldiers in Londonderry's Bogside district.

The 24th victim had died Thursday in a Belfast hospital.

Morale was reported sagging among the British troops battling to restore order and round up members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army. The soldiers came under intermittent sniper fire through the night in a number of Northern Irish communities.

In Dublin, Prime Minister Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic blamed the bloodletting on the Northern Irish government and demanded its removal. He said a new government should be formed that would give equal voice to the warring Protestants and Roman Catholics.

Northern Ireland's Prime Minister Brian Faulkner quickly retorted, saying he found neither the tone nor the substance of Lynch's criticism "at all helpful in a situation where the prime need is to protect democratic methods against the rule of the gun."

With nightfall, gunmen set ablaze the homes of two leading Belfast businessmen in attacks which appeared to indicate new tactics by the IRA.

Raiders burst into the homes of company directors Stewart Mackie and William McCracken and held the families at gunpoint while gasoline was sprinkled on furniture and ignited. The two homes were badly damaged.

Security forces expressed belief the IRA has swung around to attacks on prominent Northern Ireland citizens as a means of widening the struggle against the ruling Protestants and the British army.

The IRA is said to have a blacklist of personalities ranging from Cabinet ministers and businessmen to judges and army officers.

Informants said they no longer believe the IRA could defeat British troops in set-piece battles after their heavy losses in men and weapons.

At the same time, the Army admitted it would be hard pressed if the IRA began picking off targets on its blacklist.

A senior officer said: "We are already at full stretch. It will be impossible to put a guard on all VIP's in the province."

Despite the new outbreaks, violence was at its lowest level since British troops interned 300 IRA suspects Monday, touching off rioting in Catholic districts. More stores opened in Belfast than at any time this week.

Area Changes

Re-align Boundaries

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's senatorial redistricting commission has cast serious doubts on the political futures of at least nine incumbent senators.

They include Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, who has filed as a democratic candidate for governor on an anti-tax platform.

Blackwell was re-elected in 1970 from the 22nd district and has two years to go on his four year term. But the redistricting plan puts his home county of Jefferson in a new 25th district which also includes Ste. Genevieve, Perry and Madison Counties.

Seventeen senators will be elected next year from the odd-numbered districts.

Thus, if Blackwell loses the governorship bid and serves out his full term as senator, he will find in 1974 that his 25th district already has an incumbent elected in 1972 for a four-year term.

Skelton District Notes Big Split

(Democrat-Capitol Service)

JEFFERSON CITY — The 28th senatorial district served by Sen. Ike Skelton of Lexington will be split up between the 21st and 24th senatorial districts under the redistricting plan approved Wednesday by a 10-member bipartisan commission.

At present, Skelton serves the 28th senatorial district which consists of Linn, Charatan, Saline, Lafayette, Pettis and Cooper Counties.

Under the new plan, all the above counties would become part of the 24th district, while Pettis and Cooper Counties would join Morgan, Benton, Milier and Pulaski Counties, the commission indicated, in the 21st district.

The plan will now be submitted to James Kirkpatrick, secretary of state.

He could abandon his governorship race and run in the new 25th district, but if elected there would have to resign as senator from the existing 22nd district.

The opposite situation is true in the case of Sens. A. Basy Vanlandingham, D-Columbia, and William J. Cason, D-Clinton, the senate's majority leader. Both are serving now from odd-numbered districts and their terms expire next year.

But under the new map, they were thrown into even-numbered districts where no election will occur until 1974.

In three of the new districts, two

An IRA spokesman said internment was a failure and predicted the crisis would topple Prime Minister Brian Faulkner's government within three weeks. He expected direct rule from London.

"We can continue the campaign of the past few days at the same level for a further fortnight at least," he declared in a statement. "If we can get additional arms and ammunition we hope to continue the campaign much longer."

The IRA seeks to unite largely Protestant Northern Ireland with predominantly Roman Catholic Irish Republic to the south.

There was a lull in the overall fighting, apparently because British troops and the terrorists withdrew to rethink strategy. The British are certain they can win set-piece battles by virtue of greater firepower.

Some IRA men are now talking of an "Algerian" of greater firepower. Some IRA men are now talking of an "Algerian solution," meaning bombs and assassination rather than gun battles such as those earlier in the week.

Traffic snarls developed in the center of Belfast as hundreds of shoppers sought food which had been in short supply.

The fighting in Londonderry was between British troops and Catholic residents of the Bogside district.

Rioters put up a 10-foot high barricade during the night. When British troops moved in to tear it down, a mob of about 200 attacked them with stones and fire bombs.

British soldiers put down a screen of CS gas, similar to tear gas, demolished the barricade during bursts of automatic weapons fire and withdrew.

The traditional Protestant Apprentice Boys parade was canceled in Londonderry to prevent further violence.

democratic incumbents were thrown into the same district.

They were:

Sens. Robert A. Young of St. Ann and John D. Schneider of Florissant in the new 8th district of St. Louis County; Omer H. Avery of Troy and Norman L. Merrill of Monticello in the new 19th of northeastern Missouri and J. F. Patterson of Caruthersville and Nelson B. Tinnin of Hornersville in the new 33rd of the Bootheel.

Patterson is president pro tem of the Senate and formerly was chairman of the Senate appropriations committee.

Young has said he wants to run for Congress either in the 1st congressional district including northern St. Louis County and part of the city or in a new 2nd district in St. Louis County.

The question of congressional redistricting was not solved by the 1971 legislature and is now pending in federal court.

The state capital, located in Cole County, is bound to have a new senator. It was thrown into a new 23rd district shaped somewhat like a scotty dog and would be predominantly a republican district.

Cole County is represented now by Sen. Avery.

After much deliberation Thursday morning, the Pettis County Court agreed to give $2,000 a month for the remainder of this year to Buena Vista Nursing Home. Here, the Rev. Medford E. Speaker, employment committee chairman of the nursing

Community Center Plan Roadblocked

The plan to turn St. Patrick's School, Fourth and Washington, into a Community Center has run into a snag, according to Morris Byrum, president of the Sedalia Poy's Club Advisory Board, which has applied for a grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to purchase the property.

The application for funds was returned to the local level because of changes in HUD policy, Byrum said.

He said the application, once some procedural deficiencies are corrected, would have to be re-submitted for HUD re-evaluation. Byrum said he did not know how long the corrections would take, but hoped the application could be returned to HUD before Sept. 1.

Byrum told The Democrat-Capitol that timing was very important in getting the grant approved. "We would like to get our application in before the funding deadline on Sept. 30," he said.

Preliminary approval by HUD in September would clear the way for a grant reservation to set the money aside exclusively for the Sedalia project. He said final approval of the grant would come after specific remodeling and construction plans had been cleared by HUD.

Byrum would not comment on the nature of deficiencies and criticism mentioned by HUD in a letter he received last week. He did say, however, they dealt primarily with revisions in application procedures.

The entire project is expected to cost $200,000, he said. Of that figure, an estimated $60,000 will be spent to construct a new, multipurpose gymnasium to the north of the existing school building.

The federal grant, if approved, would be used to purchase the school building, the old St. Patrick's convent and the grounds on which they are located.

Byrum said the federal funds would have to be matched by $70,000 obtained locally.

Chimney's No Place For Duck

According to nursery rhymes and old sayings, cows can jump over the moon and bats reside in belfries, but how about fowls flying down your flue?

This is the unlikely situation which confronted L. J. Brown, 1212 Liberty Park, when he overheard a strange flapping sound behind the trap door to the flue of his basement chimney Thursday morning.

Upon inspection, Brown discovered one of Liberty Park's 18 (or so) ducks occupying the bottom of his flue. The soot-covered bird, which had undoubtedly greeted the dawn a fleecy white, had apparently been searching for a place to nest, Brown surmised, after discovering "about a half a peck" of feathers the duck had plucked from her own body for the purpose of building a nest.

Brown said he cautiously carried the reluctant duck from the flue to Liberty Park Lagoon where the fowl "seemed to be glad to get a bath and a drink of water."

"The park ducks are pretty tame," Brown said, "and they wander into the yard all the time. I saw this particular duck Monday in the garage and again Wednesday when she was walking around on the top of my workbench. I guess she flew on top of the roof this morning (Thursday) and found the flue."

A retired life insurance agent, Brown and his wife have lived in the area adjacent Liberty Park since 1947.

"This is the first time anything like this has happened as far as I know," Brown reflected. "I was a little hesitant about opening that trap door but things worked out for the best ... we did manage to get our chimney cleaned."

For Thompson Co.

Assessment Steady

The Pettis County Board of Appeals voted Wednesday to allow the assessed valuation of Thompson Hills Investment Co. to remain at its present level of $218,000, instead of raising the property valuation by $20,000, as recommended by the county's Board of Equalization.

The action was taken, according to one board member, in an attempt to keep the various shopping centers in Sedalia on as even a tax basis as possible.

Originally, a board member stated, Thompson Hills Investment Co.'s valuation had been raised by the Equalization Board because that board felt the increase would help maintain a tax balance between the shopping center, located on Highway 50, and Bing's Shopping Center on Highway 65.

The Board of Appeals reversed the decision after considering the fact that Bing's Shopping Center had actually decreased in valuation. A move to raise Thompson Hills Investment Co.'s valuation would have created too wide a gap between the valuations, it was felt.

Bing's Shopping Center was decreased in valuation by the board because of recent highway expansion projects which took land from both the western and southern sides of the shopping center property. The valuation of the shopping center was lowered by $15,000 to $249,030.

Both the Board of Equalization and the Board of Appeals are comprised by the same members: the three members of the County Court, Jim Green, presiding judge, E. L. "Red" Birdsong, eastern district judge, and Zeb Thomas, western district judge; Jerry Jones, Sedalia's mayor; Jerry Trotter, county assessor; Brooks Wade, city assessor; and Keith Eckstrom, county surveyor. Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson, county clerk, served as a non-voting secretary for the boards.

New Lease on Life For Area Rest Home

Buena Vista Nursing Home received a new lease on life Thursday morning when the Pettis County Court guaranteed the home $2,000 a month in aid for the rest of the year and promised to "try to figure it in the 1972 budget, if possible."

The decision was arrived at after a 40-minute conference marked by intensive bargaining and quoting of statistics by the two groups involved — the County Court and the executive committee of Buena Vista's board of control.

The Rev. Medford E. Speaker, employment committee chairman, hailed the County Court's decision as ushering in a "new day" for Buena Vista. Mrs. W. C. Askew, a committee member, described it as a "new hope" for the indigent in Pettis County.

"The county judges have done a real generous thing. They've guaranteed the existence of Buena Vista," Mr. Speaker said.

Mr. Speaker told The Democrat-Capitol that the County Court's decision "will, in the long run, save County tax payers money." He explained that if Buena Vista had to be closed due to lack of funds, it would cost much more to care for its 41 residents in other nursing homes.

Earlier in the meeting, Mrs. Askew said that the nursing home's bank balance is down to approximately $3,000 — "about enough money to stay open for three months if no emergency arises."

Before the judges agreed to provide the $2,000 buffer, Mr. Speaker said that Buena Vista "will have to be closed in October" if support was not forthcoming.

He pointed out that the financial crisis is mainly due to the fact that 12 of the nursing home residents depend solely on $125 a month welfare checks when the present monthly bill at Buena Vista is approximately $180. "These and other residents are indigent, and, if we refuse to take care of the indigent, we'll lose our charter," Mr. Speaker warned.

He said there are several other persons in the nursing home who make less than the amount they are expected to pay to the home.

Former State Sen. John Ryan, a member of the nursing home's board, said that at least 25 such homes in Missouri are facing similar financial crises. If these county-supported nursing homes are closed down, Missourians will have to pay more to take care of the indigent in private nursing homes, he pointed out. Therefore, he said, he is confident the state legislature will try to solve the problem.

Mr. Speaker added that the County Court's guarantee of $2,000 a month has given the board a "talking point" in its next attempt to obtain a financial assistance from the state Welfare Department.

The County Court was represented at the meeting by the three county judges, Jim Green, E. L. Birdsong and Zeb Thomas. Representing Buena Vista were Mr. Speaker, Mrs. Askew, Ryan, Jim Wiley, Hughesville; and Herman Wallace, director of the Pettis County Welfare Department.

The Black Forest is a wooded, mountainous region in southwestern Germany which gets its name from the dark hue of the trees in its fir forests, according to The World Almanac. Its mineral springs and watering places have made the area a favorite tourist resort.

Art Buchwald

Secret of a Successful 'Affair'

By ART BUCHWALD

(Many years ago Art Buchwald discovered you can have an affair and still keep your marriage intact. This is how it can be done.)

One of the problems of being married and having young children is that much of the romance goes out of people's lives. A friend of mine has solved the problem. Every week he has an "affair" with his wife.

Buchwald What he does is he kisses his wife good-bye in the morning and goes off to work. About noon he calls her up and whispers, "This is George. Is your husband home?"

His wife replies, "No, the oaf has gone off to the office."

"I've got to see you this afternoon," the husband says.

"I can't. I've got to be here when the children come home from school."

"Get one of the neighbors to take care of them. Tell them it's an emergency and you have to go into town."

"Do I dare?"

"Please, darling, we don't have much time together."

"I'm frightened."

"I love you."

"I'll come. Where shall we meet?"

"Somewhere where no one will recognize us. I'll pick you up on the corner of F and 14th Street, at 3 o'clock."

The wife arranges for the neighbors to take care of the children and gets dressed up in her prettiest suit. She then drives into town, parks two blocks away and waits on the corner.

Her husband pulls up. She glances around fast and then hops in. "I think I was seen, darling," she says nervously.

"Relax," the husband says comfortingly.

"Where are we going?" she asks.

"There's a motel just across the bridge. We'll check in there."

"But we have no luggage," she protests.

"I'll check in. You stay in the car and then we'll drive to the room."

After they get into the room she laughs, "I didn't even bring a toothbrush."

"I thought about you all week," he says, kissing her.

"So did I," she replies. "I waited for this moment. I thought it would never come."

"I wanted to call you, but I was afraid HE would answer the phone."

"He wouldn't stop watching television to answer the phone. Does your wife know about us?"

"She's too busy taking care of the kids to know about anything. I told my secretary if she called to tell her I was out at a conference."

"How long can we go on like this?"

"Let's just be grateful for what we've got."

"If we'd only met each other before."

"I feel that way, too."

At 6 o'clock they check out of the motel, and my friend drops his wife off at F and 14th. "Until next week, my darling," he says as he kisses her.

"It will seem like a year," she says tearfully.

She hops out of the car without turning back.

An hour later her husband arrives home. "Anything happen today?" he asks casually, as he pecks her on the cheek.

"The same dull routine. Anything happen with you?"

"No, just another crummy day," he yawns. They both smile inwardly and sit down to dinner.

c. 1971, Los Angeles Times

President Deliberate In Moves

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON (NEA) — By the original calculations of the Nixon administration it would take something over two years to gain control of the executive branch of the government. The time was needed to replace the holdovers with Nixon men and to get the feel of how men work with one another.

It will be noted that a little over two years (actually two years and three months) was up in late April or early May of this year.

The Nixon strategists had calculated that to control the government it would be necessary to control 300 key positions. But they decided it would be safer to go for 1,200, 900 more than their calculations had shown to be absolutely necessary.

Of course, for a variety of reasons, Nixon men were put into other posts as well, sometimes to meet the demands of patronage, sometimes because a special task demanded a man with a Nixon philosophy.

If we assume the shakedown period is over, then perhaps the real Nixon presidency is now getting under way.

But don't expect rapid moves or quick results even though there are signs Nixon wants desperately to press radically new approaches, as witness the China visit, the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) with the Russians and welfare reform with a guaranteed minimum income.

For the careful, step-by-step movement outlined in the paragraphs above is typical Nixon's approach to the presidency. He is moving into his "radical" innovative concepts by a frustratingly cautious path.

For example, look at 2½ years of planning, the giving of signals, the waiting for return signals, the careful analysis and testing of those signals, the refusing to move until he was absolutely certain that preceded the Kissinger trip to Peking.

It was not until Nixon received a definite invitation from Premier Chou En-lai himself, sent through the president of a friendly state, that Nixon moved.

The President is operating in the same frustratingly cautious and patient manner in the Middle East crisis. Though the possibility of a partial settlement (the opening of the Suez Canal) seems possible, the chances of an end to the Israeli-Arab crisis seem remote indeed. Yet Nixon plods along, working to open the negotiating door a little every time it seems about to slam shut with finality, paying no attention to hard words from either side, sending Secretary of State William Rogers, then Assistant Secretary Joseph Sisco, then operating through third countries and unofficial representatives, slowly keeping some sort of movement, however inconsequential and however unpromising, in the belief that these slight motions in themselves may prevent the area from erupting until such time as an opportunity for a solution presents itself.

Nixon approached the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks with Russia in the same way. Even after Moscow's leadership had made it clear the Kremlin would welcome talks, the President waited, waited and waited until some observers gave up in despair.

The Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia gave Nixon a sound reason for waiting, of course. But even had there been no Czech invasion, it is most probable that Nixon would have waited just as long before acting.

For it was months before Nixon's disarmament strategists had recalculated again all possible angles of all possible forms of arms control and before U.S. diplomats had explored again every angle of Russian intent, political, military, economic and psychological. Then Nixon moved — but slowly.

Today's Thoughts

Every good act is charity. A man's true wealth hereafter is the good that he does in this world to his fellows. — Mohammed, spiritual leader of the Arab world.

A liberal man will be enriched, and one who waters will himself be watered. — Proverbs 11:25.

If there be any truer measure of a man than by what he does, it must be by what he gives. — Robert South, English divine and author.

But when a man turns to the Lord the veil is removed. Now the Lord is the Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom. — II Cor. 3:16, 17.

State Sewer Bonds A Good Investment

On Oct. 5 Missourians will vote on several propositions in a special election, one of which is especially important to Sedalians.

This is the proposed $150 million bond issue to build sewage treatment facilities throughout the state in an effort to drastically reduce water pollution. Of this amount, $275,550 is earmarked for Sedalia.

It would be combined with about $315,000 in local funds, part of a $3 million sewer bond issue passed by Sedalians in 1963 to improve the city's sewage facilities. An additional $606,209 in matching federal funds is included to cover the total cost of the local improvements.

The catch is that the federal money will not be provided unless state and local governments pay their combined 50 per cent share. That's where the bond issue comes in.

One attractive feature of the bond issue approach is that it will not require a special tax to pay off the bonds. The money will be provided by the Legislature out of general revenue funds over the 10-year period of upgrading the state's sewage facilities.

The money will enable to the city to build a badly-needed sewage lagoon and interceptor sewer for the growing southwest portion of the city. In addition to serving this area, the lagoon will provide services to some residents in other settled parts of the city who are still using septic tanks.

It will eliminate the need for one temporary lagoon and three pumping stations.

Apart from local benefits, however, passage of the sewer bond issue Oct. 5 will go a long way toward solving much of Missouri's water pollution problems, since it is municipal sewage wastes that are responsible for most of these problems.

A resounding affirmative vote Oct. 5 would show that Missourians are serious about cleaning up their streams, rivers and lakes.

J. Edgar Demands Short-Hair Agents

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — J. Edgar Hoover, the 76-year-old FBI chief, has a hang up about hair. He's inclined to measure an employee's fidelity by the length of his locks.

Last June, for instance, the old curmudgeon saw a picture in the Washington Post of three FBI agents hustling an airline hijacker, Glen E. Riggs, into the U.S. magistrate's court in Alexandria, Va. One of the agents, John F. Mullen, had sideburns extending almost to the bottom of his ear.

This violated Hoover's taste in sideburns. In a huff, he censured Mullen for letting his sideburns grow too long and banished him to Indianapolis.

Now Hoover has ordered an FBI-wide inspection, division by division, for subversive sideburns and hippy hairdos. Anyone whose hair style doesn't suit the old man will lose 10 days pay.

Some FBI agents have complained privately that Hoover's tonsorial tastes make it difficult for them to infiltrate anti-government demonstrations. The demonstrators, invariably, wear their hair long and straggly.

Narcotics agents, who carefully cultivate the hippy look and lingo, have been far more successful at infiltration. They are contemptuous, indeed, of the FBI. As one narcotics agent put it to us, "An FBI man's idea of infiltrating a hippy group is taking off his tie."

A huge Texas company that does a big business with the oil companies has been hired by the Environmental Protection Agency to investigate the disastrous offshore oil spills and fires caused by the same companies.

The company is Texas Instruments, an $827-million-a-year concern whose board of directors until recently included no less an oily politico than John Connally, LBJ's old sidekick, who is Nixon's treasury secretary.

Officials at Texas Instruments are not at all embarrassed at having been hired to investigate one of their biggest customers. Indeed, in proper Texas fashion, they seem positively proud of it.

"We do business with all the major oil companies and all the minor oil companies," said Frank Lord, one of TI's public relations boosters.

Lord explained that aside from making equipment that could be used by oil drillers, Texas Instruments has one whole division devoted to performing seismic surveys of oil fields prior to drilling.

At the same time, he acknowledged, the company has signed a contract with EPA to do "surveys and investigations to determine the sources, causes, effects, movement or dispersions" of oil spills.

So far the company has investigated three major oil disasters: the Shell oil fire in the Gulf of Mexico last December; the Standard of California tanker collision near San Francisco in February and the Texaco spill near Anacortes in Puget Sound last April.

EPA officials stress that Texas Instruments has played no role in finding fault for the disasters, but was merely involved in determining the extent of the ecological harm.

This still creates an opportunity for a company, caught in a conflict of interest, to do its customer a favor. For a report minimizing the environmental harm from an oil spill would be of great public relations value to an oil company.

Nevertheless, the EPA insists that Texas Instruments has done a "professional job."

Catch 22 — Three Air Force enlistees, known as the Phut Cat Three, have been caught in a Catch 22 scenario. The trio—Sgt. James Crawford, AFC Charles Wells and AFC John Tomhave who hail, incidentally, from conservative, all-

American backgrounds—have been tossed in the brig at Long Binh, Vietnam, for refusing to carry weapons. They volunteered for Vietnam, became disillusioned over the slaughter of Vietnamese civilians and refused to bear arms any longer. They were promptly court-martialed and slapped into the brig for six months. Now they have been denied access to political literature while they sweat out their sentences awaiting a review of their case. Among the books that the Air Force apparently regards as subversive are Justice William O. Douglas' "Points of Rebellion," Andy Shapp's "Up Against the Brass," John Robinson's "Cultural Revolution in China," and Fred Halstead's "GIs Speak Out Against the War."

Pentagon Leak — Ssshhh! There's a leak in the Pentagon's war room. This isn't the sort of leak, however, that grand juries are trying to plug, but a leak on the Pentagon's air conditioning system. Every so often the system breaks down, spraying water on men and equipment. But the showers aren't altogether unwelcome. It gives our high security clearance boys a chance to roll up their trousers and wade through little puddles, something they haven't done since childhood.

Suppressing News — We have obtained documentary evidence that the Pentagon, despite official denials, sometimes suppresses news. Here's an order, still classified, that was issued in March, 1970, about the Cambodian incursion: "In view of the sensitivity of the situation, all members of this command are enjoined to refrain from making any comments, prognostications, or speculations concerning the situation, its impact on Republic of Vietnam or U.S. forces, or the possible final outcome. Not only are official on-the-record comments to be avoided, but any type of comment or background orientation on a not-for-attribution or off-the-record basis is similarly to be avoided." The order covered political as well as military information.

Receives Transit Problem

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Highway Commission has a $225 million urban rapid transit problem laid in its lap Thursday but chairman Jack Stapleton Sr. of Stanberry said no immediate decision would be made.

He pointed out some witnesses wanted the $225 million for rapid transit added to the commission's proposed $475 million bond issue for a speed-up in state highway construction. That would make a total bond issue package of $700 million.

But others, including Mayor A. J. Cervantes of St. Louis, wanted the $225 million to be a part of the $475 million total.

At the end of Thursday's hearing, however, Cervantes said "Whatever you decide will be agreeable to us."

He and others emphasized they wanted the commission to consider the total transportation problem in its long-range 12-year program, including both needed highways outstate and rapid transit in the Kansas City and St. Louis metropolitan areas.

Stapleton noted the present state constitution prevents diverting any highway use funds for anything but highway construction.

To correct that, Cervantes offered an amendment to the bond issue proposal which would change the constitution so $150 million could be spent on starting an underground rapid transit system in St. Louis and $75 million could be used in the Kansas City area.

Any bond issue would be a constitutional amendment that would have to be approved by the voters before it could become effective.

Several witnesses, including St. Louis County supervisor Lawrence K. Roos, said in statements or in testimony that separating the two issues into two bond proposals would lead to their defeat at the polls.

Alderman John Roach of St. Louis predicted a bond issue including only state highway funds would be defeated in St. Louis city and county by up to 175,000 votes.

He said city people are "sick and tired of air pollution and congested highways."

A new approach—converting the highway commission into a state department of transportation to cover all forms of transportation—was suggested by State Rep. Charles Valier, R-St. Louis.

He predicted such a proposal, if recommended by the highway commission, would be approved by the legislature.

In the 1971 legislative session a similar proposal, without commission backing, got nowhere.

A similar proposal for a department of transportation was made in a St. Louis speech Thursday by Rep. R. J. (Bus) King, a republican candidate for governor.

Joining Cervantes in support of the rapid transit idea, were Mayor Charles Wheeler Jr. of Kansas City, Jackson County Judge Harry Wiggins and a spokesman for the St. Louis Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce.

Eugene F. Williams, chairman of the chamber's transportation committee, said in a statement there is "broad grass roots support" for a mass transit system among the people in the St. Louis area, not just among elected political and civic officials.

He said this includes Black citizens who are tired of having their homes and neighborhoods torn up by new highways and who want a new means of transportation.

Friday the highway commission is scheduled to hear opponents of the rapid transit plan, headed by Joseph L. Badaracco, republican president of the St. Louis Board of Aldermen.

Even after hearing the opponents, Stapleton said, the commission would not make any quick decision on the problem.

Two Persons Killed In Three Car Crash

HARRISONVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Two men were killed and the wife of one was injured critically Wednesday night in a three vehicle pileup on U.S. Highway 71 about six miles south of Harrisonville.

The highway patrol said the drivers of two cars were killed. They were Charles E. Edwards, 53, of Adrian, Mo., and William Robert Chambers, 38, of Harrisonville.

Edwards' wife Opal, 48, was taken to a Kansas City hospital in critical condition.

The patrol said the accident occurred a few minutes after 9 o'clock as Chambers attempted to pass a truck and struck the Edwards car head-on. The two cars then bounced into the side of a tractor-trailer rig.

Area Fires

The Pettis County Fire Department answered a call at 11:59 a.m. Tuesday from the residence of Edna Barr, Route 1, Smithton, about one and one-half miles north of 50 highway on Route O, where a grass fire, of undetermined origin, destroyed about 10 acres.

At least 15 government troops were reported killed and 21 wounded. Enemy losses were put at 26 killed.

First reports said two U.S. advisers were wounded slightly in a sapper attack against Cam Lo district headquarters. Later accounts said there were no U.S. casualties.

Officers in the field said the sappers, about 60 to 80 strong, broke into the headquarters compound and destroyed four buildings in the U.S. advisory team complex.

Sappers are trained to infiltrate and blow up installations.

Cam Lo is the westernmost populous district in Quang Tri Province and thus the most vulnerable to North Vietnamese attack.

North Vietnamese troops have been building up around Cam Lo since shortly after the big U.S.-supported South Vietnamese drive into Laos last February and March.

Continuous pounding by American B52 heavy bombers and the deployment of several thousand additional South Vietnamese troops have failed to turn them back.

The 5,000-man U.S. 1st Brigade, 5th Mechanized Infantry Division, pulled out of Quang Tri combat base Saturday, leaving only one armored cavalry squadron and an air cavalry troop—fewer than 1,000 men.

Elements of the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division, backed by government marines and artillery, now has primary responsibility for defense of the country's northernmost province.

The recent lull also was broken in Cambodia. Enemy forces launched repeated assaults on Cambodian defenders of two bridges about 105 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, the capital.

The Cambodian high command said the bridges at Spean Dek and Samray on Highway 4, the route to the sea, were still standing at last report but details of the fighting were unavailable.

The increased allocations, although not specified, would go only for new and existing petrochemical plants using what are called "heavy feedstocks," chiefly petroleum derivatives such as naphtha and gas oil.

The administration hopes that it will stimulate exports in the long run and thus help ease the nation's rapidly deteriorating balance-of-payments deficit.

Although the industry is a net exporter and its exports would increase even without the program, an OEP spokesman said, "The petrochemical industry is concerned that it is losing its past dominance of the world market and that this plan would help regain that position."

The plan, announced in a statement by Director George A. Lincoln, caps more than two years of study and represents a victory for the petrochemical industry.

For that industry, which includes making of plastics, it amounts to a powerful incentive to increase investment because the cheap oil would significantly lower production costs.

Norma Rittmueller, 1520 West 20th, filed a $10,000 personal damage suit against Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. Thursday in Pettis County Circuit Court.

Soft Coal Officials Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top officials of the nation's soft coal industry and the United Mine Workers union met Thursday to set ground rules for contract talks covering some 80,000 miners in 21 states.

No details were announced, but sources said the negotiations will begin in earnest here after Labor Day in an effort to reach agreement before the Sept. 30 deadline. The coal negotiations usually are held in secret.

W. A. "Tony" Boyle, president of the union, has said he will seek to boost wages of bituminous coal miners from the current average of $37 per day to $50 and at least double the present 40-cent per ton royalty on union-minded coal for the Mine Workers Welfare and Retirement fund, plus other contract improvements.

Boyle met with chairman R. Heath Larry and president Joseph E. Moody of the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association which represents the bulk of the industry employing most of the nation's 100,000 union coal miners.

Larry, vice chairman of the U.S. Steel Corp., was also chief steel industry negotiator in the Aug. 1 settlement that gave some 350,000 United Steelworkers members three-year wage hikes of more than 30 per cent plus other substantial contract improvements.

U.S. Steel Corp. has heavy interests in soft coal which is used in steel-making blast furnaces.

The coal negotiations cover miners in Alabama, Alaska, Arkansas, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Montana, North Dakota, New Mexico, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia and Wyoming.

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese forces opened a series of attacks along the demilitarized zone between the two Vietnams Thursday, only six days after the last major U.S. ground unit pulled out of the region. The fighting broke a 42-day lull across South Vietnam.

The North Vietnamese launched three ground assaults and at least six shelling attacks in South Vietnam's northernmost Quang Tri Province.

"This is the heaviest fighting in that region since the end of June," said Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, a Saigon command spokesman. "But it is too early to say whether this is a new enemy offensive."

At least 15 government troops were reported killed and 21 wounded. Enemy losses were put at 26 killed.

No-Repeat Rule Is Repealed At Big 10 Session

CHICAGO (AP) — Big Ten faculty representatives have repealed the "no-repeat" rule which has prohibited conference teams from appearing in the Rose Bowl game two years in succession.

The repeal vote came Wednesday at the representatives' summer meetings in Boyne Highlands, Mich.

The rule has barred five teams since 1947, who otherwise qualified, from appearing in the game two years in a row.

The schools have 60 days after classes convene in the fall to challenge the vote.

If it is upheld, the 1972 Big Ten representative in the bowl game will be able to appear in the January 1973 game, if the team is otherwise eligible.

In its original agreement with the old Pacific Coast Conference, the Big Ten promised it would send "a representative team" to the game each year.

Since the 1946 agreement, though, the conference winner or co-winner was barred from the game by the no-repeat rule five times.

It also was reported that pressure is being brought on the representatives to abolish a long-standing rule which prohibits Big Ten teams from accepting bids to other bowl games.

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Kansas high school football teams will be the first to use an experimental rule which will prevent games from ending in ties, Bruce Durbin, executive secretary of the state High School Activities Association, said Wednesday.

Durbin announced at the 39th annual Kansas Coaching School that the state has permission from the National Alliance Football Rules Committee to try the rule in all its games this fall.

"If we like it, we might stick with it," Durbin said.

He explained that when games are tied at the end of regulation time, each team will be given the football at its opponent's 10-yard line and given four down in which to score—by touchdown or field goal, and with the option of the one or two-point conversion after touchdowns.

The team which is ahead after each has had an equal number of opportunities to score from the 10 is the winner. There will be no ties, except for the rarity of lights going out, bad weather forcing a cancellation, etc.

Coaches at the school indicated they favor the rule, which will apply to regular season and playoff games.

Midget Race Cars On Saturday Card

HOLTS SUMMIT, Mo. — A five-card racing program will be presented Saturday night at Capital Speedway here. In addition to the regular super-sprint, B-modified, late model stock and hobby stock classes, competition director Ralph Kiesling has announced that midgets racers will be on this week's card.

Kiesling pointed out that entries have been received from midget drivers in Kansas City and St. Louis, as well as other areas of the Midwest.

Early entries have been received from Joe Walter, Ronnie Taylor, Bert Wilson, Steve Weuant, Jack Dillard and the current Midwest midget point leader, Mike Hill of Kansas City.

The special five-card program will begin at 8 p.m.

Head Smith-Cotton High School football coach Greg Cook has announced that football equipment will be issued Friday morning at Jennie Jaynes Stadium.

Lettermen will be issued their equipment at 8 a.m., the other seniors and juniors will receive equipment at 9 a.m.

Equipment for sophomores will be handed out at 9:30 a.m., while freshman gear will be passed out at 11 a.m.

Metrano Plays The Part Of Gangster

NEW YORK — (NEA) — In this age of the non-Mafia, CBS-TV has dared to schedule a fall show about gangland. It's produced by Untouchables producer Jerry Thorpe, but it's doubtful any Italian American will object. The show, Chicago Teddy Bears, is a spoof on the gang-ridden Chicago and 1920s and '30s, played strictly for laughs.

Art Metrano plays the gang leader, Big Nick, a Capone-type character, without Capone's menace. Big Nick is a defused bad guy because his big bad plans never work out. They don't work out because Big Nick is not big on brains. He is a caricature of the sly, tough, cunning underworld creature.

Metrano looks as if he could be a gangster, albeit stereotyped. Short and squat, his body is pasta plump. His complexion is swarthy, his hair curly and his stubby fingers are made to clutch a cigar. He wears an Al Capone fedora, tilted over his brow the way Capone wore his.

Metrano's clothes for the series are pure Prohibition: wide-lapelled pinstripe suits and a huge topcoat he wears thrown over his shoulders. "I wear the topcoat like a cape — it makes me look important, like a count or something," Metrano says.

His car is an old Duesenberg. His walk is a swagger.

"It's a walk I picked up from a kid I grew up with in Brooklyn," he explained. "This kid was tough — football player and all. He was small, but he strutted. You knew he could take you." Metrano paused and shook his head sadly. "He's in prison now."

Metrano changes his voice for the part. As Art Metrano, his voice has only traces of his former Brooklyn accent. Its tone is gentle. As Big Nick, the voice becomes lower, more gravel-laden and the accent is strictly Flatbush Avenue.

"Ya always gotta sound like you don't want nobody to know whatja talkin' about," he said in a rough whisper. "See whad I mean? There's gotta be a feeling of toughness in the voice, ya know? Because if ya talk too good, they'll think you're a fairy. You gotta say 'dame' when ya mean woman, and when you want somebody, ya say, 'You! C'meah.'"

Metrano's gangland buddies are as broadly comic as he is.

Huntz Hall, one of the old Dead End Kids, plays Big Nick's valet.

"He never stops 'valeting' for a minute," says Metrano. "He's always touching me, flicking dirt off my lapels, straightening the crease in my pants, cleaning my glasses. He even carries an atomizer with him — he uses it to spray the carnation in my lapel."

Mickey Shaughnessy plays Big Nick's bodyguard and Jamie Farr is "Lefty," Big Nick's driver.

Dean Jones costars as Metrano's cousin — and foil — in the series. He plays all-American boy, Linc, to Big Nick's "hood." John Banner plays their mutual uncle and Marvin Kaplan is Jones' nasal-voiced accountant and the only one who is afraid of Big Nick's bluster.

Metrano has immersed himself in the Big Nick role. There's even a practical joke he is planning.

"One day, when we break for lunch, me and the boys (Shaughnessy, Hall and Farr) will take the Duesenberg to one of those drive-in restaurants. We'll wear our gangster clothes, too. That would shake people up," Metrano said.

It has taken Metrano 10 years in show business to get this series. For seven of those years, Metrano couldn't make a living in the business. He worked as a hairdresser to support himself.

What he's best known for now is the comedy routine he does on guest shots: a magic act that isn't. Metrano does nontricks while singing "da-da-da-da" to the tune of "Another Opening, Another Show." It's an act people either love or hate, because the humor depends on the absurdity of what he's doing.

Metrano's father is dead now, but his mother is alive to appreciate his success.

"I go home to the old neighborhood in Long Beach, L. I., and my mother says, 'You gotta see Rose next door. She's been so nice to me and she'd like to see you.' So Rose comes in and I sit in a chair, like the Pope waiting for an audience, and I give her my autograph and I tell her, 'Yeah, so-and-so star is really like he seems on TV.'"

FOSSIL SITE

CANON CITY, Colo. (AP) — The Royal Gorge, a narrow 1,200-foot deep slit carved by the Arkansas River through solid granite just west of this Rocky Mountain town of 9,000, has provided scientists one of the richest accessible fossil areas in the world.

Besides a wealth of crustaceans and marine life, the granite walls have also yielded the remains of gigantic dinosaurs that lumbered through the area millions of years ago when it was just a marsh.

New Shows Are For Children

NEW YORK — (NEA) — In the last two years, the networks have become increasingly aware of the importance of children's programs and, accordingly each network has appointed a vice president in charge of the area.

In a general sense, the three vice presidents have the same job: to create quality programming for network presentation, thus easing public pressure on broadcasters to provide more than cliché cartoons for the small fry's entertainment.

George Heineman is the Children's Programming vice president at NBC-TV. His experience on a network level goes back to 1952 when he produced the acclaimed Ding Dong School show, Miss Frances presiding.

Heineman describes himself as a broadcaster. But as a broadcaster of children's programs, he needs a certain expertise in education and psychology, as well as in broadcasting, to produce shows that will educate, entertain and — that all-important term in network television — SELL.

His major opus, the result of 16 months of research, planning and work, is Take a Giant Step. The show is geared to the 7 to 14 age group and in its 10:30-11:30 Saturday morning slot, its potential viewing audience is estimated at 15-million children.

Heineman wants to make children "reach" on this show by expanding their minds.

But there will be no formal teaching on the show. The emphasis is two-fold: entertainment and education, in that order.

"We want to do programs for children, not about them," he said. "Which means we want to find out what they find interesting, not what we think they will find interesting. This show is for kids and involves them. Its aim is to give them life experiences and to help them learn how to make value judgments: 'What is right and what is wrong?' 'What is true?' 'What are my options?'"

It is in the area of teaching children to make value judgments, according to Heineman, that the American educational system is lacking. He hopes Take a Giant Step will act as a springboard for some changes in the system. He's using a pool of 25 nonprofessional children (aged 13-15) to host the shows in groups of three. They are responsible for all the content.

Allan Ducovny is CBS-TV's Children's Programming vice president. He, too, sees his area as a mix between entertainment and education. And the accent, once again, is on entertainment. The emphasis makes sense:

"If you can't get children to watch your show in the first place," Ducovny points out, "you won't be able to teach them anything."

At CBS the fare includes a new You Are There series, a Children's Film Festival and In the News, a series of two and one-half minute news wrap-ups.

Chuck Jones, who does the children's programming at ABC, has a different approach from Heineman and Ducovny. Jones programs according to what interests him. Usually, his interests and children's coincide. As one of the pioneer figures in film animation, he originated "The Road Runner," "Wile E. Coyote" and "Popeye the Sailor" and is co-creator of "Bugs Bunny," "Porky Pig" and "Daffy Duck." Although he is relatively new to the TV game, Jones has produced and directed such TV children's specials as "How the Grinch Stole Christmas" and "The Pogo Special Birthday Special."

His new children's program for ABC-TV, Curiosity Shop, is not an educational show in the formal sense.

"We want to create a question program, not an answer program," Jones said. "A once-a-week program can't do much about educating children, but it can arouse their interest by being entertaining."

The set for Curiosity Shop fixes the tone of the show: It is a place full of what Jones calls "interesting trivia" — everything from toys and tools to a live seal named Eunice.

"The owner of the Curiosity Shop is never there," said Jones, "so the kids on the show have to figure out what things are, for themselves."

To help them discover, Jones prepares animated films on a variety of topics. One film, done by George Pal, is an animated ballet of tools — they have a battle with the blow torch as the bully who is stopped when a tack punctures him and his fluid drains out.

Laurie Bird Plays Herself In First Role

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — In "Two-Lane Blacktop," there's a girl — she's just called The Girl, never anything else — who hops in and out of cars and on and off motorcycles. Without much thought, she goes with whoever seems to offer her the best opportunity, at the time.

The Girl is played by Laurie Bird, and she's traveled that route. In fact, because her experiences in her own sad life paralleled those of The Girl, she was first hired by screenwriter Rudolph Wurlitzer as a kind of private research project. He talked to her for hours about her own restless travels on the road.

Later, when they were casting the movie, director Monte Hellman couldn't find anybody to play The Girl. Wurlitzer suggested they test Laurie and they did and she got the part. She holds her own.

Laurie Bird's story, as she tells it simply, directly and without emotion, is strictly 1971. It's today's youth, rolled into one neat, trim red-headed girl. It differs from others in only two respects — it starts out more tragically and ends up with more promise.

She's a New York girl, the daughter of an electrical engineer. She has two older brothers. Her mother died while "the three kids were still in diapers."

Laurie doesn't have much good to say about her father. He wouldn't let her have friends, she says, or any overnight guests or any slumber parties, any of that. She says he used to beat her.

"He gave me complexes," she says, "and I've spent time in psychoanalysis as a result."

So she ran away, several times. The first time, just after she finished grammar school, she went with some people she knew to Montreal, when Expo was on. The people persuaded her to call home and she did and went back.

The next time she left home, her father put out a warrant for her arrest. She wound up in a New York institution for neglected girls, she says.

The first day she was there another girl hit her in the eye and she was hospitalized for six weeks. She says she still has trouble with her vision — "If I read Newsweek from cover to cover I get a headache" — and she has a suit pending against New York for a half-million over that incident.

She ran away other times, and would probably still be on the road if "Two-Lane Blacktop" hadn't happened.

She's living in Los Angeles now, but she isn't happy here, either. She says New York has so many unhappy memories that she can't live there, but in Los Angeles she has no friends and nothing to do.

"Hollywood seems to be a city of orphan people," she says.

She reads some, but her headaches bother her. She likes to work with her hands, making clothes and jewelry. She wanted to play tennis, but there was nobody to play with.

Now she feels she would like to study acting, except that costs too much and she doesn't have much money. She just got her driver's license, but she can't afford a car. She thinks maybe she'd like to be an oceanographer, but she has never studied that science.

'THE GIRL' in "Two-Lane Blacktop" is played by Laurie Bird, whose life was the model for the character, an aimless wanderer.

Dog Chases Cat Into The Trees

OTTAWA, Kan. (AP) — Martin, 10, and Tina, 7, children of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Gravenstein of Ottawa, have a cat.

They also have a tree-climbing dog.

The cat, named Tiger, and the dog, named Dolly, were friends at one time, but as the cat grew the dog became belligerent to the point where friendship cooled.

Tiger took to the trees to get out of the reach of the paws of the 8-month-old Brittany and German short-hair.

That worked for a time.

But this week, when the urge for romping with Tiger became great, Dolly took to the limbs in pursuit of the cat—and was seven feet up before she finally yielded to the more natural climbing abilities of Tiger.

Paging Success

Don Galloway of NBC-TV's "Ironside," Dave Garroway, Gordon MacRae and Bill Dana are all proof that you can work your way up to the top. They all started in show business as NBC pages.

Tony's Tale

For trivia buffs: Tony Randall, now fastidious Felix on "The Odd Couple," was the football coach on the old "Mr. Peepers" TV series.

BROTHER ACTS

It's "all in the family" for these TV brothers: Jack Narz and Tom Kennedy, both quiz show hosts; Jim Arness and Peter Graves, both strong, silent types; and Joe and Frank Campanella.

DISNEY WORLD'S SLEEK MONORAIL will whisk visitors through the heart of the complex — including still-building 14-story resort hotel, shown in artist's sketch.

ADAMS-RILEY

RURAL GAS, INC.

310 W. 2nd Sedalia

ORLANDO, Fla. — (NEA) — At the junction of Interstate 4 and State Road 535, about 15 miles southeast of here, there is a building called the Walt Disney World Preview Center.

Even though it is unadvertised, more than one million people have already found it, and viewed the model of the huge amusement park-and-resort complex which will open in October, and watched a brief movie explaining the park.

In the lobby, there is a souvenir stand which does a rushing business. It sells the usual run of T-shirts and playing cards and necklaces, plus Disney World bumper stickers (for 25 cents). The owner of nearby Cypress Gardens came by one day and went away depressed—he'd been giving bumper stickers away, but then nobody has the merchandising magic of the Disney organization.

A few miles down the road is the Disney World employment office. Personnel director James Passilla—one of 200 executives transplanted from Disneyland in California—says that in its first month of operation it processed 20,000 applications. This is somewhat below the anticipated figure, but Passilla says the quality of the average applicant has been better than expected, so they're happy.

In hiring—they have to have nearly 6,000 employees by opening day—they are giving preference to Florida residents. But, in some areas, they are having to go outside. Disney operations always stress that they "cast" their employees, and they're having trouble casting people to man the Polynesian-style hotel. There are very few South Pacific types in central Florida, so they are looking elsewhere for them.

On down the road is the site itself, where two new cities—Lake Buena Vista and Bay Lake—have been created, and where the park itself is under construction. More than 7,000 men are working a 10-hour day to have it finished by Oct. 1.

In one huge building, the Disney World transportation system is coming to life. On the ground floor, workers are transforming three locomotives bought in Yucatan, Mexico, and dating from the 1920s into the sparkling engines which will pull trains around the park.

Upstairs, the monorails — sleek and new — are being assembled.

There is even a shipyard, where the various types of boats which will cruise the natural lake and man-made lagoons are being put together. Most of them were built in a St. Petersburg shipyard, then trucked here in pieces to be put together.

Other workmen are rushing a campground to completion. This will be able to handle 234 campers and trailers in a beautiful natural site. Nearby, men are carving a nature trail into the swamp; you can walk along and view monster cypress trees, estimated at up to 2,000 years old.

In another area, workers are putting the finishing touches on two par-72, 18-hole golf courses, one planted with magnolias, the other with palms. On one, next December, the $150,000 PGA-sponsored Walt Disney World Open will be played. Arnold Palmer is one of several top pros who have already said he'd be there—and he'd be bringing his family.

The acceptance of this largest of recreation areas has been immediate. More than 300 conventions, into 1978, have been booked. Cruise ships from New York have altered their routes, so they'll stop at nearby Port Canaveral and let their passengers see the park.

A new STOL-port is planned and two small airlines—Pioneer and Executive—will begin scheduled service to various cities.

Disney World: Contrasts and Stastictics

ORLANDO, Fla. — (NEA) — Walt Disney World, which will open near here in October, is a study in contrasts.

An area larger than Manhattan Island — and one mean alligator.

The largest private employer in Florida — and a few lightning rods.

Moving more earth (nine million cubic yards) than anyone ever did before — and three old railroad engines from Yucatan.

It's all part and parcel of what will undoubtedly become the biggest resort area in America. Unlike California's Disneyland, where the majority of the visitors are local, the Florida equivalent will be what they're calling a "destination resort," meaning people will come and stay for a few days.

Thus the amusement park itself, with its famous rides and its familiar castle, is only part of the 28,000 acres Walt Disney World encompasses. There will also be hotels and lakes and golf courses and nighttime entertainment.

The statistics on the place are staggering. When it opens it will have 800 salaried and some 5,500 hourly employees. If all goes according to plan, in three to five years that figure will be up to 10,000.

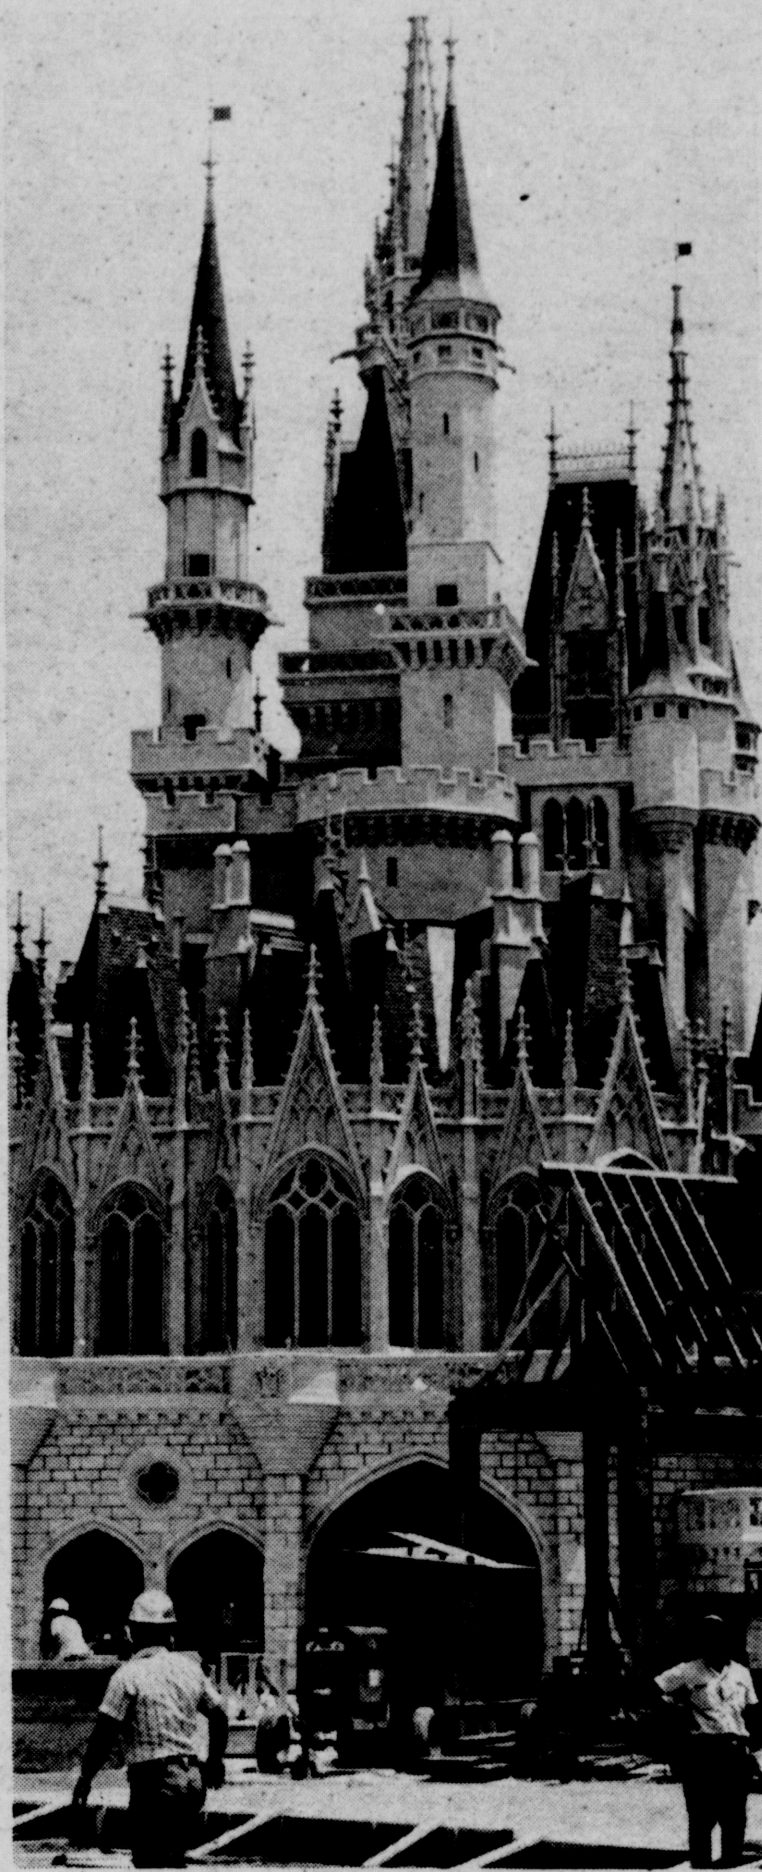

The amount of money being spent is estimated at $300 million, "but nobody really knows," says retired Adm. Joseph Fowler, who is in charge of construction. (Disneyland, when it opened, had cost a comparatively insignificant $17 million.)

They've built miles of roads, brought in miles of power lines, constructed miles of sewers, made costumes, furnished meals, filled in some lakes and built others — the whole thing is one of the most gigantic undertakings ever attempted.

And yet little details are important, too. There is one lake reserved for water skiing, swimming and boating. It's finished now and lovely, with new sandy beaches and clear water. The only problem is that there is still one alligator — an eight-footer — and they haven't been able to get him out yet.

Florida's wildlife and weather are continuing concerns. Insects — eye gnats, blind mosquitoes, love bugs and other exotic creatures — are prolific. They're working on ways of getting rid of them, and using only lights which are low in insect-attracting power.

Snakes were a worry, but they haven't found as many as they expected. There is one story, perhaps apocryphal, about the Disney employees who cruised a swamp (some acreage is being preserved in its natural state) and a water moccasin dropped into the bottom of the boat from a tree. One of the men crushed it with a shotgun — and sank the boat in the process.

DISNEY WORLD CASTLE'S topmost spire is functional as well as decorative — it is lightning rod insurance against central Florida's frequent thunderstorms.

Florida's weather is more extreme than California's. Winters are cold, so the beautiful tropical plantings must be protected by heating devices. And the summers are hot, humid and rainy, so everything is air-conditioned and there are many places for the visitors to get in out of the wet or the sun or both.

Because of the prevalence of late afternoon thunderstorms — Florida has more thunderstorms annually than any other state — the taller buildings are equipped with lightning rods. The big castle's spire is a lightning rod, for example.

The planners profited from mistakes made at Disneyland.

The California park's restaurants and shops must be supplied by truck, which is inconvenient. Here, they built a basement — they believe it is only the second basement in the state, the other being in a Tampa bank — and the establishments will be supplied via underground.

Building the basement was probably the single biggest engineering feat. Florida's water table averages only two feet below the surface, so the entire area had to be built up, before they could dig down. The resulting basement, looking like some futuristic city, runs under most of the park. It holds offices, storage facilities, roads, computer rooms. The public won't ever see it, but its presence will help them have a good time.

Kidvid Grows Up

NEW YORK — (NEA) — In television the eras of children's programming could legitimately be labeled B.S. and A.S.: Before Sesame Street and After. The Children's Television Workshop program aimed at pre-schoolers made both audiences and broadcasters aware that children's programming could be more than animated cartoons.

"Kidvid," an industry term for children's programming, was out. The heat was on: from parents' groups (notably the Boston-based Action for Children's Television), from governmental agencies (the FCC mainly) and from sponsors to oust "Kidvid" and get better children's programming on the air.

The networks responded with announcements, plans and appointments of special vice presidents in charge of children's programming.

The cynics on the TV scene snickered: "This will come to nothing—it is just a sop."

The cynics are disappointed. Network promises have taken shape in action, as this season's lineup of children's programs shows.

There is more progress to be made in children's programming — and the networks know it. Nevertheless, one can view this year's schedule as the harvest of children's programming ideas sown two years ago, planted after the success of Sesame Street.

One thing is clear in the networks' children's offerings: They are not going after Sesame Street's market. They're aiming at an older group — between the ages of six and 14.

Saturday mornings are prime Kidvid time and the networks cash in on it by programming exclusively for children. In fact, the networks are so eager to capture the kiddie viewers, they're all premiering their new fall children's programming lineup on the same day: Sept. 11.

Refreshingly, there are programs in this season's Saturday morning lineup that, although they are designed for children, adults can enjoy watching.

NBC has two new entries: "Take a Giant Step," created and produced by George Heineman, the man who brought another generation of youngsters the award-winning Ding Dong School 20 years ago; and The Great Barrier Reef, an adventure series set in Australia.

Take a Giant Step is a one-hour show hosted and run by children in the 13-15 age group. It is geared for children from the ages of 7 to 14. The show concentrates on showing young people how to make value judgments by having a theme for each program—"Happy-Sad" is the theme for one—and having three adolescent hosts discussing their views on the theme.

They illustrate different aspects of it through film clips, music, animation and the Vismo screen. The kids themselves, with the guidance of two assistant producers and two researchers from Scholastic Magazine, compile all the information and put the show together.

Also on NBC, Mr. Wizard returns after a six-year absence. Don Herbert, as ever, explains complex phenomena in simple terms, but the show adds a new dimension, with film clips illustrating some of his experiments.

CBS has a pint-sized version of You Are There, with Walter Cronkite the anchorman as he was on the old TV series of the same name. Historical events, such as The Alamo and the bombing of Pearl Harbor, are recreated.

The Children's Film Festival, which was a monthly offering last season, becomes a weekly series on CBS, with children's films from all over the world.

In the News is a special feature: eight weekly two-and-one-half minute broadcasts that give youngsters an understanding of both current hard news and feature stories.

ABC's new entry in the Saturday morning lineup is Curiosity Shop, an experimental program created and produced by long-time film animator Chuck Jones. The rest of the ABC morning lineup is much the same, with Lancelot Link, Secret Chimp Hour and animated goodies to entertain the kiddies.

In the weekday schedule, both Sesame Street (on PBS) and Captain Kangaroo (on CBS) will be back. And The Children's Television Workshop is premiering a new children's program, this one for youngsters in the second-to-fourth grade age group. Titled The Electric Company, the show is designed to teach basic reading skills. Among the company of seven actors who will be regulars on the show are comedian Bill Cosby and Rita Moreno. The show will be seen on PBS starting Oct. 25th.

In addition, NBC has a number of children's specials planned. One is an animated show called "All About Me," which is a tour of the human body reminiscent of the Frank Capra-produced educational films done for the Bell System in the 1950s. Another is an underwater show and a third has Shari Lewis and her puppets.

Visiting Hubby

Mrs. James (Gloria) Stewart has her day in the spotlight when she guest stars on an episode of her husband's "The Jimmy Stewart Show" this fall. She plays his grandmother.

Kiser A New Dustin Hoffman

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Hollywood used to be a place of mob scenes. There were mob scenes in front of the camera, and the mob of technicians behind the camera was often bigger.

But come along with me and watch a typical 1971 film being shot.

It's called "Lapin 360" and it is budgeted at around $600,000. Compared to the old Hollywood, that's like buying a new car for $3.98.

The new movies, such as "Lapin 360," don't waste money shooting in a studio. Everything is done on location. This one was filming at the Midtown School, a private preschool nursery on a hill behind the ABC studio.

They have a Cinemobile unit—a big truck, with all the equipment fitted in, like cosmetics fit in a girl's cosmetic case. They also have one other truck and two cars. Period.

The technical crew is cut to the bone. But it's all union. The unions, as they are doing these days, made many concessions to the company.

"Without union concessions," says associate producer Hal Polaire, "we would have had to take the picture out of the country."

The case is headed by two newcomers—Terry Kiser (he is the man on the Alka-Seltzer commercial whose wife is about to make stuffed dumplings) and a pretty girl named Peggy Walton.

Producer Herb Margolis says that Kiser is a new Dustin Hoffman and Miss Walton a young Katharine Hepburn. But producers always say things like that. He has a coupe of seasoned pros — Anne Baxter and Nehemiah Persoff — to back them up.

"Lapin 360" is the first production of a company called A.I.M.—Artists International Management — and Margolis is the creative head. He says the money comes from "Eastern insurance men."

"We want to make meaningful films," he says, "and we're planning to do five in the next 18 months."

Margolis is an old Hollywood hand. He says he's been in Hollywood for 20 years and made mostly junk, only he used a more colorful word than that. He did several of the old Ma and Pa Kettle films, one or two of the Francis the Mule gems and created "The Wackiest Ship in the Army", for both features and television.

"Lapin 360" — the title is the name of the main character, plus the number of the computer he works with — is an anti-violence film, set against the background of the computer industry, with a strange love story in the foreground.

Peggy Walton, the young Katharine Hepburn, came by to ask Margolis and director Robert Lewis—it's his first feature, but he's done many Mod Squads—where she could change. The budget has no room for such niceties as dressing rooms, so they pointed her at a classroom and told her to pull the shades.

Kiser says he's done one movie role before this—he was the preacher in Paul Newman's "Rachel, Rachel," but that was only a small, although meaty, part. Mostly he's been doing commercials and doing very well at them.

"Commercials are a good source of money," he says. "People say it's prostitution, and it may be, but I like privacy and privacy costs money, so I make it any way I can. Out of my commercials, I was able to buy a little retreat in Massachusetts, and I love it."

The shooting was interrupted when one of the school's staff came looking for a child. There was a call for him from his mother in London. The toddler went and came back two minutes later.

"My mommy's in London," he told everybody. "Now I have to find out where London is."

Lucy Strikes Agzin

Lucille Ball had a great coup last year when she persuaded the Brutons to guest star in an episode of her show. But she may top the coup this year since she has just signed Helen Hayes for an upcoming episode.

Cavett Emptor

Dick Cavett has seen both sides of TV talk shows. Before he got a late-night spot of his own on ABC-TV he wrote monologues for his now-competitor, Johnny Caron, for "The Tonight Show."
